1 Slain, 2 Wounded
Third Escapes in Washington Ambush

Washington—(AP)—Four gunmen, one of them disguised as a priest, stormed the home of a well-to-do building contractor last night. They ran into a police ambush and a barrage of bullets.

One gunman was killed. Two others, their bodies riddled, were wounded critically. The fourth escaped.

Deputy Police Chief Edgar Scott said the four men had intended to kidnap Felix Marchegiani, 61. A tip from the FBI foiled the plot.

Marchegiani was shot in the shoulder during the gunfire that almost wrecked the living room of his fashionable home in northeast Washington. The wound was not considered serious.

Scott told this story:

About 6:30 p. m. the FBI tipped police that a gang would try to kidnap Marchegiani. Without elaborating or revealing the source of the information, the FBI said the gang planned to take the contractor to his office in suburban Coral Hills, Md., and force him to open his safe.

Set Up Trap

Scott promptly set a squad of detectives and patrolmen to the Marchegiani home.

Two detectives took Marchegiani's wife and the couple's only child, Antoinette, 19, upstairs and then hid in a bedroom. Three other detectives crouched behind living room furniture.

Four patrolmen were deployed in scout cars near the house.

Almost four hours slipped by and nothing happened.

"We were about to believe the plans had been called off," Scott said, "when the kidnapers showed up in two cars. They circled the block a couple of times before parking their cars in front of the home."

Four men walked up to the front porch. Two carried pistols, the other two sawed-off shotguns.

A gunman dressed as a priest knocked on the door. Marchegiani opened it.

Announces Holdup

"This is a holdup," the intruder said. "Where is your money?"

Jabbing his gun in Marchegiani's back, the hoodlum and a companion marched the contractor up the stairs and into the bedroom where Mrs. Marchegiani and the daughter had been sent—and where the two detectives were hiding.

The officers, fearing they might hit one of the family if they opened fire, remained hidden.

The gunmen ordered Marchegiani's wife and daughter to lie on a bed.

"I'd hate to shoot your heads off," one said.

At that moment, one of the two gunmen remaining downstairs spotted Detective Sgt. Leonard Kragh crouching behind living room furniture. He fired at Kragh.

As Kragh and the other detectives began shooting, all four gunmen dashed for the door. Police bullets dropped three of them. The fourth, an unidentified Negro, escaped.

The dead hoodlum was identified as Raleigh Morton, a Negro, of Washington.

The injured were identified at Providence hospital as Gene C. Smawley, 28, and Charles L. Cross, 38, both white. They were charged with assault with intent to rob and kill.

Medics Bar Physician to Late Pontiff

Rome—(AP)—The personal physician of the late Pope Pius XII has been barred from practicing medicine in Italy for selling newspaper articles and photographs on the pope's death.

Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi-Lisi issued a statement saying he will appeal the action taken by the council of the Rome Medical association last night. He declared the verdict embittered and startled him. Galeazzi-Lisi said he will "naturally provide for the defense of my reputation before competent authorities"—a mixed board of doctors and magistrates. He said he gave the council a clear explanation of his action. He will be allowed to practice after appealing, pending final ruling.

Defends Action

The medical association's 14-member council questioned the doctor behind locked doors for 20 minutes last night before it issued its verdict.

Galeazzi-Lisi previously had maintained his conscience was at rest and he had not betrayed any professional medical secrets concerning Pope Pius, who died Oct. 9 at Castel Gandolfo, the papal summer residence. Once a patient dies, a physician is free to discuss his case, Galeazzi-Lisi contended.

The council accused Galeazzi-Lisi of seeking "to achieve profit." It added he "gravely compromised his own reputation and the dignity of the medical class."

"The actions... constitute an infraction of medical ethics because a professional physician cannot divulge facts which he learned through his professional activity," the council said.

No Accord in Press Strike

New Yorkers Face Weekend Without Local Newspapers

New York—(AP)—New Yorkers today face the prospect of a weekend without local newspapers as a deliverers' strike over a new contract entered its fourth day.

Negotiations between the Publishers Association of New York City, representing the nine big dailies, and the striking newspaper mail and deliverers union were to resume this afternoon with federal mediators present.

The giant presses of the nine papers, which daily feed 54 million copies to the country's largest city, have been idle since Thursday morning.

Renewal of contract talks was recessed yesterday on a pessimistic note. The two sides had been brought together, for the first time since Wednesday, by federal mediator Herbert L. Haber.

"Not much happened... to indicate the strike will soon be over," a publishers' representative said. He added the papers would not increase their money offer—a $7 weekly wage increase over two years. The offer was rejected by the union in a rank and file vote Tuesday.

Youth Sought as Killer Of Mother, 4 Children

El Cajon, Calif.—(AP)—A homeless youth the family had befriended was sought today for slaying four children to death and shooting their mother.

The bodies of Mrs. Lois Pendergast, 37, and her children were discovered in their home last night. The children's throats had been cut and their abdomens slashed.

A widespread search was launched throughout southern California for a towering teenager who had been living with the Pendergasts for the last few weeks doing odd jobs around the house. Thick fog hampered the searchers.

Father Finds Bodies

Thomas J. Pendergast discovered the bodies of his wife and children, but not before the youth, identified as Charles Harrison of Rochester, N.Y., had disappeared.

Pendergast, an aircraft worker, said Harrison was waiting for him outside the house when he arrived home from work last night. The 6-foot 4-inch youth aimed a .22 rifle at him and said:

"I have a cop tied up in the house. You're going to drive me out of here."

Pendergast drove at gunpoint toward San Diego, 10 miles away. On the outskirts of the city the youth ordered him into a service station rest room so they could exchange clothing. Pendergast grabbed the gun away from Harrison, but the youth slipped outside and disappeared down an alley.

Pendergast then drove home and found his family slain. His wife's body lay in the hallway. His two daughters, aged 4 and 2, were in the bathroom. A son, 9, was found in his bedroom and another son, 6, was in the garage.

The shocked father told police he had picked up Harrison hitchhiking last Nov. 2.

"He told me he had run away from home in Rochester because his father had taken his college money away," said Pendergast. "He was a quiet, studious-looking boy and was a big help to my wife around the house."

The youth left a suitcase behind. In it were two hunting knives—one of them bloody—a hypodermic needle and syringe and a book from the Rochester public library, "Yogi and Health."

Chinese Extend Thanks to U. S. For Quemoy Aid

Taipei, Formosa—(AP)—The Chinese Nationalist general staff has extended warm thanks for U.S. support during the Quemoy crisis.

The Nationalist chief of staff, Gen. "Tiger" Wang Shu-ming wrote thank-you letters to Vice Adm. Roland N. Smoot, commander of U.S. forces on Formosa, and Maj. Gen. Leander L. Doan, commander of U.S. army forces on Formosa and chief of the U.S. military assistance advisory group (MAGG).

The letters were received at American headquarters here today.

Wang told Smoot his forces "have successfully demonstrated to the world their superior quality in combat and high spirit of devotion in the discharging of duties to their country and the free world."

3 Dead, 7 Injured In Chicago Fire

Chicago—(AP)—Three tenants were killed and seven others injured early today when a fire raced through the upper floors of a 4-story apartment building, several blocks northwest of the loop.

Dozens of tenants fled in a panic, some as firemen brought the extra alarm blaze under control in a half hour.

Sam Weiss, owner of the building at 683 Milwaukee avenue, identified the dead as Frank Jackowski, 45, Miss Julia Rollinski, about 70, and Stanley Bedicki, also about 70.

Claim 435 French Dead Algerian Rebels List Casualty Total for Month

Cairo—(AP)—The Algerian provisional government claims rebel forces killed 435 French soldiers and wounded 263 from Dec. 3 to yesterday.

A spokesman said last night in the same period rebels carried out seven ambushes.

He said three planes and 2 helicopters were downed and 33 military vehicles destroyed. The spokesman reported 12 French soldiers deserted their units and joined the rebels.

In Paris today, the French defense ministry said the rebel army based in Tunisia is splitting into warring camps.

The ministry said some 2,000 Algerian rebels have taken to the hills and now are fighting their former comrades plus Tunisian forces sent to round them up. No reason for the rebel rift was given.

Some 8,500 Algerian rebels have been using Tunisia as a base, according to French figures.

There have been repeated reports of rifts in the rebel ranks from unofficial Tunisian and French sources. Today's was the first report from an official agency.

Mao May Lose Top Post in Red China

Nationalists Say Commune System Cause of Criticism

BY SPENCER MOOSA

Taipei—(AP)—A report from underground agents said today the Chinese communist party central committee in urgent session has decided to replace Mao Tze-tung as chairman or head of the government in red China.

The reports, which top nationalist leaders said they considered authentic, had it that the decision was based in part on wide dissatisfaction in China over the commune system that has uprooted family life in the interest of all-out production.

The reports did not indicate, however, whether the reported meeting also decided to replace Mao as head of the communist party. Thus, even if the reports are true, Mao probably still would exercise supreme power in red China as head of the party.

Nationalist officials who put credit in the reports said events within the next six or seven weeks would bear out the accuracy of the underground information. The reports said Mao would not be nominated for reelection as government chairman when the people's congress opens in Peiping some time in January.

The underground agents gave this account.

The central committee was summoned to Hankow in central China, far from the capital of Peiping in North China, on Nov. 26. Mao himself presided at the meeting, which was said to be still in session.

Two Main Topics

(Peiping radio itself reported Mao was at Wuhan at that time with other top party leaders. Wuhan is the communist name for the tri-city complex of Hankow, Hayang and Wuchang. Peiping said they met there with Premier Kim Il Sung and other North Korean leaders.)

The committee was summoned to discuss two main subjects: The failure of the campaign against Quemoy, and wide dissatisfaction over the recently introduced commune system for speeding red China's production.

Under the commune system, the people are regimented into labor battalions, eat at a common mess, sleep in dormitories and are denied all usual forms of family life.

The meeting was bombarded with messages from communist party branches and other groups from all over the mainland urging abolition of the commune system, restoration of family life and the granting of land to farmers to till for themselves.

The reports said the commune system for speeding red China's production.

Search for Nose Cone Of Missile With Tiny Occupant Is Abandoned

Washington—(AP)—The army flung a tiny monkey into space today but lost it in the south Atlantic.

Six hours after the monkey began its journey in the nose cone of a Jupiter intermediate range ballistic missile the army announced that the search for the little space traveler had been abandoned.

It was the first attempt by the United States to put a primate—a higher type of mammal—into space to start a determination of the effects of space travel upon man.

The nose cone of the Jupiter with its cozy cabin for the squirrel monkey reached an altitude of 600 miles on its roaring trip from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Target Area Hit

The army reported the 1,500-mile flight was completely successful.

It said, "there appears to have been a mishap in the tricky recovery gear which is carried in the nose cone to assist search planes and ships" in recovery efforts.

Scientists already know from the flight of about 15 minutes that the monkey fared well as he soared some 600 miles into space.

The missile warhead hit the pre-determined target area more than 1,500 miles from the launching site. However, indications were that the navy recovery team that awaited the nose cone's re-entry into the earth's atmosphere apparently ran into trouble.

If all had gone well the submerged cone and its precious cargo should have been retrieved from the Atlantic in the space of about two hours at the most.

In Washington, Capt. Norman Lee Barr of the navy medical corps said information radioed back from the monkey's flight indicated gravity free travel does not cause adverse physical change.

Barr called this the most significant finding so far in the monkey's rocket flight. He said information was received for nearly 15 minutes after launching, or for almost the full flight of the rocket.

Brig. Gen. Jack Barclay, commanding general of the army ballistic missile agency, announced in Washington that the nose cone hit in the intended target area.

Monkey Described

The army described the squirrel monkey, as "an intelligent monkey native to Central and South America." It added:

"Although not in any way related to the squirrel, this monkey gets its name from the similarity to the squirrel in size and in the color of its coat. It is a small, active tree-hunting gentle creature with a long rather bushy squirrel-like tail and tufted ears."

"Physical characteristics: average length of head and body is 10 to 15 inches. Its

Court Ends Strike Ban Against Pilots

Judge Won't Renew Temporary Injunction by American Airlines; Both Sides Appear Optimistic

New York — A federal judge has lifted a temporary strike ban against pilots for American airlines, but the union says it has no immediate plans for a walkout.

Judge Frederick Van Pelt Bryan yesterday refused to renew a temporary injunction by American, and at the same time denied the company a permanent stay.

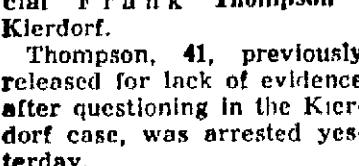

Bryan ruled that the Airline Pilots association had been bargaining in good faith during involved negotiations that began more than a year ago.

At the same time, the judge refused a request by the union to dismiss a $540,000-damage suit against it. American

Business Agent Faces Hearing On Arson Count

Claim Man Involved In Fire Which Took Life of Kierdorf

Flint, Mich. — Teamsters union Business Agent Jack Thompson faces a court hearing next Thursday on an arson charge in a dry cleaning shop here, which police say led to the death of Teamster Official Frank Kierdorf.

Thompson

Thompson, 41, previously released for lack of evidence after questioning in the Kierdorf case, was arrested yesterday.

At his municipal court arraignment, Thompson was remanded a hearing. He was released on $1,500 bond pending the hearing Dec. 18. Conviction of arson carries a maximum 10 years in prison.

State Atty. Gen. Paul Adams said he was convinced Thompson, business agent for Flint Teamsters Local 332, and Kierdorf set fire to a Flint cleaning shop Aug. 3 and that Kierdorf was burned accidentally during commission of the crime.

Kierdorf, 59, seared from head to foot, staggered into a hospital a few hours after the fire. He died four days later.

After his death, Thompson, a close friend of the victim, was picked up for questioning. He was released five days later for lack of evidence.

Genesee county Prosecutor James F. O'Rourke said four months of investigation had produced sufficient evidence to warrant prosecution of Thompson.

The Kierdorf case touched off a request by the attorney general for a grand jury investigation of possible extortion of small businessmen who had been targets of union organizing drives. A panel of circuit judges refused to authorize the inquiry.

Tiny Monkey In Nose Cone Of Missile

thick busy tail is from 14 to 19 inches long.

"Average weight of the squirrel monkey is two to three pounds. It will live in captivity for 10 to 15 years. It is a tropical monkey accustomed to temperatures around 78 degrees Fahrenheit. It is extremely sensitive to changes in temperature.

Successful Launching

"The squirrel monkey has the same anatomical makeup as man and undergoes much the same emotions."

An army spokesman described the launching as a "most successful shoot."

The test would be a major milestone in man's bid to conquer space if the monkey survived the blazing re-entry of the rocket cone through the earth's atmosphere at speeds reaching 10,500 m.p.h.

The most famous animal space passenger to date has been Laika, the dog which was hurled into orbit around the globe in Russia's Sputnik II satellite Nov. 3, 1957. Laika perished shortly after the Red moon plopped into orbit.

Up to now, the United States has fired three white mice some 6,000 miles across the sea in air force Thor-Able rockets, but their nose cone space shells were never found.

Instruments showed that on two of the flights the mice probably survived the re-entry and splashed into the ocean and died later.

White Flame and Smoke

The 50-ton rocket roared into the starlit sky amid billows of white flame and smoke.

The army kept a tight cloak of security around the big project until several minutes after launching when it announced simply that "the nose cone of this missile contained a primate on a biomedical experiment."

It was believed the monkey was made quite comfortable for his hectic space flight more than 600 miles above the earth.

A team of top biomedical specialists were waiting at the cape for word of the monkey's fate.

The monkey, unofficially dubbed "Gordo" after a comic strip character, probably had an adequate oxygen supply and some type of food included in his tight space chamber.

In Washington, the army said the navy was assigned to try to locate the cone and its monkey passenger at sea.

Continued Test

The army termed the launching a continuation of tests of an intertidal guidance system, warhead protection and the arming system.

It added:

"The army continued its Operation Gaslight study in connection with this flight to obtain infra red and photographic data from bodies re-entering the earth's atmosphere. Special equipment for this purpose was installed on one of the ships near the impact area."

"The Gaslight team was prepared to measure radiation emitted by each of the three sections of the Jupiter, the editorial insulting and 'a separated during the flight, as departure from journalistic norms."

Gov. Thomson Says Public Misinformed on State Debt

Accuses Milwaukee Journal of 'Lack of Integrity' on Issue

Madison — Gov. Vernon Thomson said Friday the Milwaukee Journal showed a "lack of integrity and sense of public responsibility in its attempt to create the completely false impression of a huge state building debt."

Thomson also said the Journal has reported half-truths and misleading statements in regard to the state building program and that "all of these statements were grossly untrue."

J. Donald Ferguson, president and editor of the Journal, said he had no comment to make on Thomson's charges.

Journal Statements

Thomson said the Journal stated editorially Oct. 29 that the state debt "is actually $50 million or so." He also said that on the following day the paper stated Wisconsin's borrowing methods "have so far created $50 million of debt" and that on Nov. 24 the newspaper reported "Wisconsin has no record of its building debt."

There are four state non-profit building corporations. Thomson's statement said three of which were created years before he became governor and that their financing methods have been in use since the 1920s.

"The cost of buildings constructed by two of these corporations is paid off by rental fees appropriated from tax funds," Thomson said. "As of Dec. 1, 1958, the outstanding obligations of the Wisconsin State Building Corp. and the Wisconsin State Agencies Buildings Corp. were $11,280,000."

Not Debt

"While the State Supreme Court has stated that these buildings corporations obligations do not legally constitute a so-called 'state debt,' these are the only outstanding state waves and aerodynamic characteristics."

Barclay said initial reports indicated success in what he called the missile's primary mission of testing its guidance system, warhead protection and arming system.

This was the twelfth time a Jupiter has been launched since March 1957.

Previous Launchings

It blew up for the first time shortly after launching on the last shoot on Oct. 9. In addition to the explosion, there have been six launchings considered completely successful and four partial successes.

Today, the launching appeared perfect. The missile rose straight up, pouring out a huge tail of white flame.

After about 75 seconds it curved, high in the Florida sky, and roared eastward until engine burnout occurred after about three minutes and it disappeared.

The 66-foot Jupiter also provided the booster power for the first army space probe which sped some 66,000 miles into space before plummeting back to earth after a spectacular launching a week ago.

building obligations as of Dec. 1, 1958 which in any sense can be called an obligation of the Wisconsin taxpayers."

Thomson said the other two state building corporations were established to construct educational facilities and that the costs of buildings constructed are paid off by "user fees."

"Thus, as of Dec. 1, the total outstanding debt of all state building corporation obligations was $31,309,000; and 64 per cent of this amount, or $20,229,000, will be paid by 'user fees' and will not in any sense have to be paid by the taxpayers as such," Thomson said.

He said the user fees are obtained from dormitory room rentals, athletic receipts and student union fees. Thomson said the buildings are paid for by the people who use them and not the taxpayers.

Thomson said the obligations of all building corporations and information concerning their activities are available to anyone interested in examining them.

Claim GM Subsidiary Got Extra $975,000 From U. S. Contract

General Accounting Says Costs Proved Lower Than Expectations

Washington — The general accounting office says a General Motors corporation subsidiary got an extra $975,000 out of an air force contract because its costs proved lower than military purchasers expected.

A GAO report to congress said unreasonable high prices resulted from air force buyers awarding a $7,791,328 fixed price for their purchase in the absence of real competition and without checking enough on the costs the manufacturer would incur.

The report was made public today by the accounting office, which serves congress as a watchdog over government spending.

Computer Systems

GM's AC Spark Plug division won the 1955 contract for 1,931 kits to modify navigation computer systems for bombers. It turned back $750,000 to the air force last year.

J. A. Anderson, AC's general manager, denied that the contract cost the government too much. He cited the $750,000 refund and said the air force had turned down a company offer to make the kits under an arrangement whereby the prices would be re-determined after completion of the contract.

Dudley C. Sharp, assistant secretary of the air force, told GAO in a separate letter that air force buyers have been ordered to get up-to-date figures on manufacturers' costs. But Sharp defended the award to AC, saying the contract was awarded to the lowest bidder.

GAO said that while some of AC's $975,000 saving may have been due to efficiency, most of it stemmed from AC's buying parts for the kits at prices well below the prices used in figuring the contract cost.

Paris Costs

AC's estimated parts costs included prices based on previous purchases in small quantities, the GAO said, without taking into account price cuts to be expected on a larger order.

Thus, it said, one item estimated by AC to cost $111 each — when 66 units were bought — actually was sold to AC for $59 apiece when AC bought 1,000 units for the air force order.

French Communists Blame Vote System For Party's Defeat

Paris — The French communist party blames the vote system for its beating in the recent parliamentary elections. The Reds took no blame themselves.

A resolution adopted yesterday at the end of a 2-day session of the party's central committee attacked what it called the cheating electoral system. It blasted the socialists for not making electoral alliances with the communists.

The resolution said most of the faithful stuck with the party. It did not criticize the party's organization.

Red representation dropped from 145 seats in the old national assembly to 10 in the new one. Their percentage of the total vote went from 25.7 in 1956 to 18.9 this year.

The POWER of FAITH
by Howard Brodie

AP Newsfeature
"And There Were in the Same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night."

On Shepherds' Field, below the town of Bethlehem, is the cave where tradition says the shepherds were resting when the angel appeared to them. On hills and in fields nearby shepherds still graze their flock. During my trip to the Holy Land, I sat on the rocky slopes one evening and quietly sketched these shepherds at work, wondering if they perhaps were direct descendants of the men who heard the heavenly hosts singing:
"Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men."

Another Charged In California Bank Shortage
Los Angeles—(A)—A charter airline operator charged with skimming $200,000 off the one million dollars milked from the Sun Valley National bank has surrendered.
D. K. Brown, FBI special agent, said George S. Patterson, 42, had a balance of $894 in the bank, yet cashed 188 checks totalling more than $200,000.
Patterson was arraigned before the U.S. commissioner on one specific count alleging he cashed a check for $5,000 drawn on Universal Airlines. The company carries freight and passengers on a lease basis. He was released under $15,000 bond.
Patterson's arrest was the 14th in the bank shortage, which the FBI says resulted from the cashing of more than 3,000 checks without charging them against the check-writer's account.
A federal grand jury investigation of the case is pending.

Higher Education Spending Requests Dismay Nelson

Many Officials Make Staggering Requests of Budget Hearings

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Madison — Dismay was the chief reaction Thursday as Gov. — Elect Gaylord Nelson studied the full implications of the enormous spending requests of the state's higher education institutions for the next two years, and listened to their officers in a somber recital of even more staggering spending demands during the years following.

If there is drama in a situation which demands money in multi-million dollar amounts above the capacity of the present Wisconsin tax system, there was drama aplenty in the day-long testimony of the officers of the University of Wisconsin and the state colleges before the new head of the state who wound up his public budget hearings with the proceedings yesterday.

The officers, for their part, responded to the spirit of the occasion. Their demeanor was serious. Their words were strong.

His studies about the huge growth in college and university enrollment that is in prospect are "frightening," admitted Prof. Fred Harrington, assistant president of the University of Wisconsin.

At another point W. D. McIntyre, of Eau Claire, chairman of the board of state college regents, admitted that the "money figures are staggering." "But they will put higher education in a position to take care of the influx of students we are certain is coming," he added.

Nelson took no pains to hide his discomfiture as the highest state school authorities laid out the figures in confounding detail that spelled the highest state tax liability in history.

Once he asked the officials

after listening to their biennial fiscal requests, to project enrollment and spending trends "so you can scare us in advance."

37 Per Cent More
The institutions together asked for about $77,000,000 in operating funds for the next two years, or an increase of about 37 per cent. The university's increase was put at 31 per cent, the colleges at 50 per cent.

The university-college system is now handling about 35,000 full-time students. By the end of the next two years the total will rise to about 50,000, it is estimated.

But Nelson's bad news did not end with the enormous increases in operating fund requests. The regents of the institutions also told him they need about $34,500,000 during the next two years for new state college buildings, and about $54,200,000 during the same period for new construction at the University of Wisconsin at Madison and in Milwaukee to accommodate the flood of students that will arrive in the succeeding decade. President Rexford Mitchell of LaCrosse, president of the state council of state college presidents, repeatedly referred to the enrollment prospects of the 1960 decade as a "deluge."

As Nelson glared down at his papers, the regents continued with their doleful account of unprecedented state treasury demands.

Whence the Money?

During the six years following this biennium, they said, they have figured "conservatively" that they will need another $105,000,000 for university and college building.

Nelson joked a little with the regents about the implications of their story.

"Have you figured out how to raise the money; have you given any thought to it?" he demanded of Chairman Wilbur Renk of the university regents.

"Yes, I have, but I have not yet arrived at any conclusions," was the response of the forthright Dane county farmer.

Renk did say that students of the future may be forced to become accustomed to more economical ways of serving them in college. Night and Saturday classes, among other innovations, may be needed to spare the taxpayer

Dark Clouds Bright Holiday Prospects For Youth, Parents

Pottstown, Pa. — Barry Seibert felt the first glow of Christmas spirit Wednesday.

The Pottstown High school teenager had been offered a parttime job selling popcorn and that meant cash to buy holiday gifts.

Supervising Principal Stanley Davenport gave him permission to take the job and the 17-year-old sophomore was walking on air as he left the school office for his gym class.

An hour later he collapsed while dressing in a locker room.

At Pottstown hospital, a team of 11 physicians took turns massaging the boy's heart. His parents watched anxiously. Several hours later he was dead.

Defendant States He's Poor Driver, Judge Takes License

Detroit — George E. Gravlin led police of three suburban communities on a 10-mile chase at high speed over icy roads before his arrest on a reckless driving charge.

"A man who drives like that shouldn't be allowed on the road," Gravlin said at his arraignment in traffic court.

"I agree," said Judge John D. Watts. "Your license is suspended for two years."

Judge Watts also sentenced Gravlin to jail and placed him on probation for two years.

through more efficient use of the education plant, he hazarded

Nelson once hinted that he may be inclined to go beyond his campaign proposals to amend the state constitution to permit state bonding for the financing of state institution building.

As he discussed the huge increases in operations, he told the school officers to examine their problems "realistically," and commented:

"You'll have to do something about raising this money, like amending the constitution to permit borrowing."

He also seemed interested in admission standards of the schools. He was told that for all practical purposes all Wisconsin high school graduates are eligible to enroll in the state colleges and the university, except those comparatively rare individuals whose applications are not ratified by their home town high school principals. But those who rank in the lower third of their high school graduating class are required to pass entrance examinations, it was explained.

Sidelights on the Gunaca Case

When Gov. Williams of Michigan announced he had decided to extradite John Gunaca to answer the assault charges Wisconsin had against him, he explained 'he was doing so after being advised by his own "objective and disinterested" investigators that conditions in Wisconsin now were as calm as they were likely to be in the "fore-seable future."

Gunaca was wanted for assault with intent to do bodily harm to non-striking Kohler workers at Sheboygan Falls in July, 1954. Gunaca fled to Michigan immediately after it became known he was wanted and Gov. Williams protected him there for more than four years, declaring he felt it would be impossible for him to get a fair trial in Wisconsin.

Now what sort of an investigation was it that convinced Gov. Williams that Gunaca should return to Wisconsin? The Detroit News, looking into this matter, finds that part of the investigation was made by James M. Moses of Marshall, Mich. Moses, a Democrat, is chairman of the Michigan state civil service commission through appointment by Gov. Williams. He also is publisher of the Marshall Chronicle. Gov. Williams was reluctant to identify his investigators but upon questioning admitted that Moses was one of them.

The Detroit News quotes Harry Maier, managing editor of the Sheboygan Press, as saying that Moses had telephoned him about a week before the governor's decision on Gunaca. In that telephone call Moses wanted to know what the reaction of Sheboygan citizens would be if Williams were nominated for president. Maier replied there was no apparent sentiment in the Sheboygan area for Williams' candidacy for president. Then Moses asked if Maier thought Gunaca's extradition would help Williams' position as a candidate. Maier replied that he did not know if it would help but that he thought "it certainly would not harm."

L. N. Mathieu, executive vice president of the Sheboygan Association of Commerce, also was interviewed by the representative of Gov. Williams. Mathieu said he was questioned by someone from the Marshall Chronicle and he thinks it was Moses but is not sure. Mathieu said he told the caller that he "doubted very much whether Williams' reception would be very great because of the Gunaca deal." Mathieu said he expressed particular concern over Williams' repeated statements that Gunaca might not get a fair trial in Sheboygan.

Of course Gov. Williams says he did not know the people of Sheboygan were being asked what they thought about his presidential chances. "Such questions were not authorized by me," he declared. "What I wanted was an independent appraisal of the atmosphere in the Sheboygan area. This we succeeded in getting," the governor said. The governor admitted that Moses and some other informants had "made some soundings" as far back as June, 1956, and had reported the situation in Sheboygan was pretty tense. The latest soundings were made much more recently and at that time they convinced the governor that the situation was no longer tense, the governor said.

This is a very interesting sidelight on the Gunaca case. But it doesn't prove anything unless it is that the governor's investigators were much more interested in the political outlook for the governor than in the matter of a fair trial for Gunaca.

Tyranny for the 'Liberated'

Absolute monarchs of a bygone day didn't dare to do in the name of tyranny what the masters of communist China are doing today in the name of liberation.

No prison in the western world has debased even its most desperate criminal as the overlords at Peiping are debasing the Chinese peasant.

Assume you are a young Chinese, on the threshold of adulthood. From your parents you have heard the stories of starvation, warlords and oppression that were their lot when they were your age. That old world has gone into the grave, and you look with hope to the new "democracy" and its glorious tomorrow.

Then the summons comes. You are to have your part in the new China, where the lowest is the peer of the greatest — all for the common good.

You are assigned to your barracks — whether military or civilian — far from your old friends, your neighbors and home-like surroundings. You have been indoctrinated with the idea that you will play your part in the grand world of communism.

If you can read, China Youth Journal already has told you that you must sacrifice the "bourgeois luxury" of individualism. You spend long hours listening to orators expound on the great dream, if only you conform, and work against the threat of imperialism from without.

Just put yourself into the hands of the all-wise benevolent party, which has your welfare at heart and certainly knows what's best for you.

It will wake you in the morning, tell you when and what to eat, when and where to work, when and what to study, when and where to sleep. It will teach you to venerate Mao, Chou and Khrushchev because they know what is best for you; and to hate the God of your fathers, capitalism, and Americans, who want to exploit you.

You will conform, for you know that the reactionaries who complained about hours and wages and ventured to criticize your socialist bosses have vanished from the Earth.

You haven't a care in the world, except maybe some vague fear of getting shot up in a war against the capitalistic warmongers. Never fear, the party will take care of the aggressors — with your help, of course. That's why you must be strong.

bench, all of equal disinterest to the viewer.

But now, in what should be the quote of the week, TV colorman George Connor cleared it all up during a commonplace fracas of the Cardinal-Bear game last Sunday. "Temper may flare a little at times," explained George. "But it's all in good sportsmanship."

So now it is all clear! Possibly Green Bay pro football fans will remember some of these particular aspects of sportsmanship back when Mr. Connor was playing for the Bears against the Packers.

Beyond that, however, there is cause to doubt the report of the Chinese removal. Requests from South Korea that the United Nations Committee for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea be permitted to check on whether the Chinese have left North Korea have been studiously ignored. Rumors insist that some 175,000 Chinese "volunteers" still are in North Korea in civilian garb and occupations.

These propaganda maneuvers all are part of the cold war. They are seldom taken seriously any more by the representatives of the free nations. Eventually even the neutral nations who are so anxious for peace that they overlook a lot of nonsense may be impressed by the lack of honor and truth which is so apparent in the Communist claims.

Wise Cities Plan Future Growth Well

From The Atlanta Constitution

All cities, large and small, would do well to keep before them the fact that unless they move into the field of urban renewal, their future will be one of decline rather than growth.

At the meeting of the National Conference on Metropolitan Growth, statisticians were presented by planners which dramatically posed the problem of the future.

In the next 20 years urban areas must "make a place" for 72 million more people with all the urban services, schools and other facilities now regarded as essential by all city residents.

The cost of this undertaking will be a minimum of $1-100 per capita for the services... a total of many billions of dollars. Existing sources of revenue, plus private expenditures, all will have to be utilized to do the imaginative job demanded by the pressures of the future. It adds up to a considerable financial burden, which is why planning must be done well in advance.

Here in Atlanta, where planning has been good, we see existing expressways crowded and housing schools and other facilities being subjected to intense pressures.

Wise is the city that plans and determines to see the job through.

The Farmer Boy

I've a feeling of contentment
Musing here beside the door
Basking in the autumn sunshine
Counting up the harvest store

There is fodder for the cattle
Gathered when the skies were blue
There is grain and hay aplenty
For the sheep and horses too

There are many golden pumpkins
For of pies we never tire
There are nuts to crack all winter
When we gather 'round the fire

And the grapes and plums and peaches
All are safely stored below
They are there in many bottles
Standing ready row on row

And the apples and potatoes
All are snugly put away
Now we're waiting with a welcome
For the first cold stormy day

I've a feeling of contentment
Rich in thankfulness and joy
That the city does not claim me
That I'm still a farmer boy

Purpose of Meeting Was Distorted

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Recently, a group of people met at the courthouse to try to organize help — desperately needed for the animals at the humane society's shelter. The report in the Post-Crescent sounded as though the chief aim of that meeting was to chase the dog catcher. That was not the purpose of the meeting.

The citizens committee that met was trying to bring to the attention of the community the deplorable conditions of dog pounds in the Fox river valley. Also, to get help for the animal shelter, which may have to close for lack of funds and food.

You surely know the real conditions, from letters sent to the Post-Crescent. Many animal lovers would contribute if they knew them. While not of his faith, I have long been an admirer of St. Francis of Assisi, who gave up a life of riches to aid the poor, and to teach kindness for every living thing. It might have been a little more kind to the people who have worked so hard

Public Pulse

Ike Remains Popular Though Party Slips

BY ELMO ROPER AND ASSOCIATES

The nation as a whole still thinks well of its president, despite the blow the voters delivered to his party last month. But the enthusiasm felt for Mr. Eisenhower during his first term as president, when approval of his conduct of office was often expressed by two-thirds and sometimes by three-quarters of the public, has drained away. This fall approval of his record as president fell to 59 per cent, with approval of his handling of specific problems at even lower levels.

On the whole do you approve or disapprove of:

His conduct of foreign policy	49	28	23
His attitude toward business and businessmen	44	27	29
His advisers	39	34	27
His handling of the school integration issue	43	42	15

These figures have several interesting stories to tell:

harded this fall, disapproval rose to 41 per cent.

A. Recession

While the recession had a decided impact on congressional votes this fall, with voters worried over unemployment problems inclined to vote Democratic, the public did not blame Mr. Eisenhower for recession woes. The level of disapproval for his "handling of recession problems" is lower than for his handling of anything else, making evident the clear separation of the president from his party.

C. Advisers

The low vote of approval given President Eisenhower's advisers came not long after Sherman Adams' resignation and indicates that the public as a whole was not sorry to see him go. But two cabinet members have also been the target of intense public criticism and probably figure to some extent in the results: Sec. of State Dulles, who has been accused of stirring up rather than quieting this country's international relations, and Sec. of Agriculture Benson, whose austere farm program has alienated a good many farmers accustomed to more generous government subsidies.

B. Foreign Policy

Nor is there widespread criticism of the president's handling of foreign policy. But 28 per cent is not a negligible amount of disapproval, and among people well enough informed on foreign affairs to be able to name the secretary of defense and at least one of the islands the Chinese Communists bom-

D. School Integration

The vote of least confidence is that given Eisenhower's handling of school integration, with the nation split over whether he has done well or badly on this touchy issue. Approval comes mainly from those who are for immediate or at least fairly speedy integration, with adamant segregationists strongly opposed to the president's handling of this problem. While Eisenhower's approach has fluctuated between soft words and forceful actions, it is apparently the actions — such as sending federal troops to Little Rock last year — that have stuck in most people's minds. Yet the president has not entirely pleased the nation's most pro-integrationist group, the Negroes, a full third of whom find fault with his handling of the situation to date.

Voting Record Tabulations Not Always Fair

From The LaCrosse, Wis., Tribune

In the past couple of decades the practice has grown more and more common of tabulating the voting records of our lawmakers like baseball players' batting averages.

The labor unions particularly circulate such records to their members in their traditional effort to reward their political friends and penalize their enemies.

Considered in this tabular, black and white form, these records have, however, only a very limited value in measuring the performance, the aims and purposes, and the political philosophy of candidates for legislative office.

Indeed, in some instances the interpretations put upon a man's votes in congress or a state legislature are quite misleading.

The fact is that most lawmakers' votes are not simple black and white matters are all. Their reasons for voting pro and con are as complex and varied as might be expected from any assemblage of human beings under any circumstances.

Any explanation of their final vote which does not somehow get into this background is inadequate.

FDR vs. Eisenhower

The public's overall evaluation of Eisenhower is strikingly similar to that given a strikingly different president toward the end of his second term, Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose record as president was approved in 1939 by 61 per cent of the nation and disapproved by 30 per cent. At that time, just before the outbreak of war in Europe, the rating of Roosevelt's foreign policy was considerably more favorable than that of Eisenhower's today. But Roosevelt's generally anti-business orientation was less popular, even at that time, than Eisenhower's generally pro-business orientation is today. Roosevelt had trouble with his advisers, too, which was reflected by the fact that more people disapproved than approved of them in 1939.

Since Dwight Eisenhower became a widely beloved military hero during World war II, he has commanded the affection and admiration of most Americans. He has retained a good deal of that affection and admiration, although the public is less enthusiastic about some of his specific acts as president and is distinctly cool to the party to which he belongs. Get Ready for New Year's Calls

79 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Dec. 13, 1879.

If the ladies intend to receive New Year's calls it is time to commence making arrangements.

It is due to the gentlemen that they have notice of the intentions of the ladies in time to be prepared to make calls in a satisfactory manner. Announcements should be sent to the Crescent office by 9 a.m. of the 24th inst. Probably half a dozen ladies on a street will combine and receive at one house, the fashionable style of late years.

Leap year, eh? Yes, in Leap year, it is the privilege of gentlemen to receive afternoon calls from the ladies, from two to five o'clock.

Red Threat in Iraq Worries Egyptians

Nasser Partly to Blame by Taking
Soviet Support of Arab Nationalism

BY JOSEPH ALSOP

Cairo — Behind the scenes, the prospect of a communist take-over in Iraq is worrying the leaders of the Egyptian government as nothing else has worried them since the Suez crisis. The trend of feeling was indicated to this reporter by President Gamal Abdel Nasser himself. Further interviews with other key personalities have painted ed a still darker picture. Moreover the Egyptian government plainly thinks that a decisive communist take-over in Iraq is very much more likely than first appeared in Baghdad a fortnight ago. No doubt this is because of the recent obscure but evidently dramatic events in Baghdad. These caused the Iraqi leader, Brig. Abdel Karim Kassem, to announce that he had frustrated another coup d'etat organized by "corrupt elements and foreign powers." Without announcing it, Brig. Kassem also replaced his national-minded ed chief of police with a pro-communist. Thus "Kassem has now moved a long further stage towards becoming the communists' helpless prisoner." On the other hand, President Nasser also miscalculated when he supposed that the battle in Iraq would be ended by the defeat of the former regime there. His glamor and prestige, his unceasing attacks on the Nuri government in Baghdad, were indeed the main motive forces behind the former regime's defeat. But the immediate instruments of the coup d'etat were the conspirators in the army and organizers of the Baghdad mob. Even without communist pressure, these new masters of Iraq were always likely to want to go on being the masters, instead of handing the mastery over to Nasser. Such in fact is the explanation of the course followed by Brig. Kassem, who is not a communist even although he can too easily become the communists' prisoner. In fairness, it must be added ed that Nasser's two miscalculations were as nothing to the miscalculations of the Western policy-makers. The communist trend in Iraq is a very bitter pill indeed for the Egyptians. Until the Iraqi revolution, all Arab revolutionaries everywhere at least outwardly accented the unique authority of Gamal Abdel Nasser. Determination of Nasser and the other Arab nationalists to purge the Arab lands of any kind of foreign influence was inspired, one must remember, by a quite genuine Arab patriotism. Now the communists in Iraq are not only challenging Nasser's unique authority among the Arabs, but they are asserting a new kind of foreign influence that is much better able to fight Nasser's movement on its own ground than any influence the West could ever hope to exert. Hence a communist - dominated Iraq will be a very serious danger indeed, not only to Jordan, the states of the Persian gulf, and other unstable Arab lands, but also to Nasser's own "northern region" of Syria. For all these practical as well as patriotic reasons, the tendency of affairs in Baghdad is causing a degree of concern here that almost amounts to consternation. This is not publicly admitted, but it is abundantly evident in everything the Egyptian leaders say in private. Iraq is the main topic. Even a month ago, one suspects that any Iraqi government which did not fully acknowledge Cairo's special authority over all Arabs would have been viewed with no enthusiasm. Today, Brig. Kassem has only to deal with his communist problem himself, in order to be welcomed in Cairo as a beloved friend and brother. (Copyright, 1958)

Lawrence Says:

Alabama Right In Refusing to Give Records

President Misled
Into Prejudging
Case in News Talks

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington — Alabama state officials are well within their rights in declining to recognize a blanket subpoena to produce records sought by the U. S. Civil rights commission. President Eisenhower made an unfortunate mistake when he was misled into prejudging the case at his news conference. He said that failure to produce the records was reprehensible. He added that it was a "refusal to comply with the basic laws of the land."

The question of what is or is not the law of the land in answering a subpoena is by no means clear. Actually, the president's own attorney general in recent weeks has declined to furnish certain records which a senate committee has been trying to get in its crusade for freedom of information in the executive branch of the government. Was this refusal a violation of the law of the land?

The late Sen. McCarthy of Wisconsin was denied access to records in the defense department when he tried to compel testimony on "who promoted Peress."

The Alabama state officials contend there are no laws on the Alabama statute books which deny anyone the right to vote on account of race or color. The question turns entirely on the judgment and efficiency of the local registrars and it is argued that their records are part of the state judicial process.

Watkins Case
Most of the recent rulings of the supreme court of the United States about the wrongful uses of subpoena power protect communists and persons with communist associations who have refused to answer questions of a congressional committee. Thus, in the so-called Watkins case, the supreme court of the United States, in an opinion rendered by Chief Justice Warren, said:

"There is no general authority to expose the private affairs of individuals without justification in terms of the functions of the congress. This was freely conceded by the solicitor general in his argument of this case. Nor is the congress a law enforcement or trial agency. These are functions of the executive and judicial departments of government. No inquiry is an end in itself; it must be related to and in furtherance of a legitimate task of the congress."

It may well be that there are many Negroes in Alabama who ought to be permitted to vote. But there are lots of people in America who are the victims of injustice, and the only way they can get justice is through the proper procedures in the courts.

Some of the state officials might even be held in contempt for refusing to produce the records. But, in the final analysis, the supreme court of the United States will have to decide whether the subpoena power has been justly exercised and whether it invades the rights of the states. It's too early to condemn American citizens as law violators when they have not as yet been adjudged guilty in a trial.

In Effect
The basic principle of the separation of powers has been in effect ever since the foundation of the republic. President Washington, when asked to supply certain records to congress, said:

"It is essential to the due administration of the government that the boundaries fixed by the constitution between the several departments should be preserved. A just regard to the constitution and to the duty of my office under the circumstances of this case forbids the compliance with your request."

The judicial branch of the federal government has refused to permit the legislative branch to encroach upon its records. No legislative committee has been able to subpoena members of the judiciary with respect to proceedings in their courts.

Certainly administration officials do not concede they have been violating the law of the land by refusing to testify before congressional commissions or committees. So it is difficult to see why the judiciary of a state is said to be defying the law of the land when it insists that its judicial processes must be protected from any encroachment of congress.

Thinks Cancer To be Beaten by Immunization

Japanese Medic's
Ideas Based on Getting to Source

Tokyo—(AP)—Dr. Tomizo Yoshida, a leading cancer specialist, believes scientists may eventually wipe out cancer by immunization. This would be based on the idea of preventing conditions which start cancer and aid its growth.

In an interview, Dr. Yoshida said Japanese scientists have generally ruled out the possibility of a cancer virus. "The consensus of Japanese specialists is to regard cancer as a biological change of normal cells," he said, "rather than to try to attribute cancer to causes such as bacteria or virus."

Cancerous Cells

"Certain conditions, yet to be fully explored, are needed for the biological occurrence which changes a healthy cell into a cancerous one and certain similar conditions are required for cancerous cells to live and grow."

"If such conditions are prohibited, cancers will cease to exist. Our goal is to determine the conditions. Once this is done, it will open up the possibility of a cancer immunology."

"Unlike tuberculosis, cancer has many varieties based on many conditions. Of course, better drugs and antibiotics effective against cancer may be produced but I think it unlikely that just one drug can be developed as a cure for all cancers."

Attacks Tissue

Dr. Yoshida developed the cancer drug, nitromin, widely used in Japanese clinics and hospitals. A close relative of mustard gas it attacks cancer tissue.

Yoshida grimaced when he turned to the question of research funds and observed:

"The U. S. grants given Japan for medical experiments in 1958 totaled $64,700, larger than the entire Japanese government spending on cancer research. We are grateful to the U. S. government."

Advanced Countries

"Japan is one of the most advanced countries in cancer research despite its lack of funds for this purpose. I can say so on the basis of my first-hand inspection of foreign facilities and discussions with my foreign colleagues."

Yoshida toured the United States for three months early this year and attended the international cancer conference in London last July. He studied in the United States, Britain and Germany (1935-38) and majored in pathology at Berlin university. He is now a professor at Tokyo university and director of the Japan anti-cancer association.

Return of Brother Little Girl's Big Christmas Wish

York, Pa. —(AP)—Mary Gutt, 9, would like a doll, a new dress and a skating skirt for Christmas. But she would do without them if Santa Claus would bring Michael home.

Michael is her 16-year-old brother. He was a car washer and disappeared June 19 after damaging a car. There had been no trace of him.

Mary will celebrate Christmas with her parents and her seven other brothers and sisters. It will be a large family gathering. But when Mary wrote Santa about the presents, she said:

"There are a lot of other things I would like to have, but I wouldn't care if I didn't get anything if you would just find my brother and send him home."

"If he would just come home we would all be glad because Christmas won't be a happy one if he isn't back."

Jaywalkers Run Risk Of Causing Accidents

The next time you jaywalk rather than cross at the proper corner, remember that the pedestrian who crosses the street between intersections is always risking the possibility of an accident.

B. A. Precourt, safety director for the AAA Wisconsin division, points out that jaywalking causes 35 per cent of all pedestrian traffic deaths in U. S. towns and cities.

"The pedestrian should remember," Precourt says, "that safety devices at the corner, such as traffic signals, cross walks and signs, are installed for his protection—and his use."

Believe State Has Deer Kill Pattern

Liberal Seasons Probably Will Continue for Some Years; See Modification in Shooting Dates

The state probably has set a pattern of deer harvesting on a liberal basis that will be continued for some years, according to officials of the Wisconsin Conservation department.

Commenting on the 95,000 deer harvest achieved during the shooting season just closed, Game Supt. J. R. Smith said:

"The public apparently has come to believe there is no great danger to the deer herd in a longer season and a larger harvest, and it surely provides more recreation for the sporting public."

Public Reaction

Smith said public reaction in general has been so favorable that a longer buck shooting season, accompanied by the party permit system which allows a comparatively heavy harvest of does and fawns as well, is likely to be the basic program for state deer management for a considerable time.

The department and its biologists have favored heavier harvesting for a long time. Recommendations for longer and more liberal seasons earlier aroused public hostility, however, which was reflected in a cautious and sometimes reluctant attitude on the part of the conservation commission which sets game rules.

Such reservations apparently have vanished today, however, with the result that game managers are now preparing to recommend a similar shoot next year, with perhaps some modifications to lure more hunters into areas where the need for herd trimming is greatest, as in the northwestern counties.

This year the commission authorized a special post-season hunt in the northwestern region in order to encourage more cropping there. Next year the special hunt in overpopulated counties probably will precede the regular season. Experience of other states shows that hunters tend to go where the shooting begins earliest.

Such tactics would tend to reduce also the admittedly heavy concentrations in such counties as Jackson in the central zone, and Vilas and Marinette in the northeastern district.

Smith said this state's deer season this year attracted national attention and that he has been asked for a detailed report on Wisconsin experience by four other deer states, including neighboring Michigan.

A detailed analysis of the season's deer kill is now being prepared, including a report on the sex distribution of the deer taken.

It is already known, however, that the regular buck kill was 14 per cent above that of last year and that the party permit harvesting accounted for 80 per cent more deer than last year—when the party permit shooting was allowed only in a limited number of counties.

His own conclusion on the basis of the cropping of the last two seasons, says the head of the game division who makes recommendations to the policy-making commission, is that the state deer herd can withstand a kill of 80,000 to 90,000 yearly without damage, and with some improvement to the state's forest resources which have been damaged through winter overbrowsing of the animals during many past years.

Treatment of Lakes Attracts Wide Interest

Wisconsin's Use of Chemicals to Help Fishing Praised

What Conservation Director Lester P. Voigt calls "the most spectacular development in fishery management" is attracting national attention in sports fishery circles.

It is the harnessing of modern chemical technology to the improvement of Wisconsin sports fishing lakes to rehabilitate them and convert them to the production of more desirable species of fish.

Voigt has reported here that Wisconsin experiments in the chemical treatment of lakes have been so successful that the U. S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife is setting up a special laboratory for Wisconsin studies at the LaCrosse station of that service.

Stunted Fish

Many Wisconsin lakes have populations of stunted fish, or of undesirable kinds that tend to drive out the sports species by competing with them for food and space.

Voigt has informed Governor-elect Gaylord Nelson that the department wants to expand such lake conversion work.

More than 40 lakes have been treated with chemicals thus far to destroy existing populations and to make them habitable for more attractive species. Several thousands of acres of water were involved.

Largest treated thus far, and with satisfactory results, was Lake Como in Walworth county, covering more than 1,000 acres, and heavily used in that resort community on the Illinois line.

Committee on Pollution to Remain Busy

Agency Head Says Work Load Certain To Grow Heavier

The problem of preventing and treating pollution on the recreational lakes of Wisconsin will provide plenty of work-load for the state committee on water pollution and its staff when the river cleanup program becomes effective, Director T. F. Wisniewski of the state pollution law enforcement agency reports.

The head of the agency that was set up a decade ago by an aroused legislature was asked by Gov.-elect Gaylord Nelson whether the committee's work load may decline, after Wisniewski reported on progress in compliance with his Wisconsin river clean-up orders since 1949.

New Problems

"New problems are constantly turning up," the official replied. "Currently there is the lake algae problem, for example. Lake treatment work will increase, I expect. We have had the troubles on Lake Koshkonong in southern Wisconsin to illustrate. The resort industry has lost a good deal of money there."

Wisniewski said the committee has issued 1,156 pollution abatement orders since 1949 when the legislature adopted the Kaftan act at the insistence of conservation organizations and leaders. About 200 larger budget in 1949.

East Central Area Proving To be Major Deer Producer

Figures Indicate 1,165 Killed in Outagamie; 2,065 in Waupaca

BY JAY REED
Post-Crescent Outdoor Editor

Deer hunters who place venison in the bag above the attraction of camp life in the far north certainly must look to east central Wisconsin when planning next year's hunting trip.

Kill figures for the November shooting season indicate east central sections of the state, Outagamie and Waupaca counties in particular, now support a large deer herd.

Hunters in Outagamie county registered 1,165 deer during the 9-day season this fall. This is over three times the number harvested a year ago and amounts to about 10 deer killed per square mile.

It must be pointed out that hunters in Outagamie came under the state's party permit rule this year for the first time. This added to the bulk of the kill, undoubtedly, but of them have been issued against municipalities. About half of them so far have been satisfied.

"The municipalities and others are complying quite well," he reported, "although occasionally we must go to the attorney general for help. It requires a lot of follow-up work though," he told the new governor.

Water Pollution

Nelson appeared interested in the problem of municipal sewage treatment as it is related to surface water pollution. Local governments have been spending heavily for such improvements, the official noted, and in many sections of the state a second phase of improvement in treatment is now underway.

He recalled that the state committee a year ago in an order required every city and village on the Fox river in northeastern Wisconsin to provide complete treatment, primary and secondary, with a fee has issued 1,156 pollution abatement orders since 1949 when the legislature adopted the Kaftan act at the insistence of conservation organizations and leaders. About 200 larger budget in 1949.

See Growing Interest in Badger State

Out-of-state interest in Wisconsin's recreational facilities continues to grow and 1958 is already the banner year of all times in spite of the recession.

During the first nine months of this year the conservation department received 165,935 inquiries for information as to the state's recreational offerings and on the basis of past experience the department will receive at least 10,000 inquiries during the rest of the year. During all of last year there were 157,140 inquiries and the year before that 147,052.

Illinois people seem to appreciate the services of the information office of the department in Chicago which handled 41,357 inquiries during the first nine months of this year compared to 18,024 during the comparable period of last year.

Predator Bounty System Certain To Come Up Again

Many County Boards Demand Legislature Restore Old Program

After two years of comparative quiet, the argument about wild animal predator bounties threatens to erupt again.

The hints are abundant in the numbers of resolutions from county boards of supervisors demanding the legislature restore the bounty law that was repealed two years ago, and in the careful questions about bounties asked by Gov.-elect Gaylord Nelson.

The department opposes bounties, as Director Lester Voigt freely admitted, because it feels they are wasteful and unimportant in controlling the number of predators, and especially the foxes that bring most of the complaints about predation. The department has held to that line consistently for many years but it was only two years ago that it was able to get a majority of the legislature to listen.

More Predators Now

The new governor appeared extremely interested in the issue, although he did not indicate he favors a restoration of the bounty system. He said he had merely wanted to learn more about the matter because of the enormous interest in the subject among farmers, sportsmen and others. As a member of the legislature two years ago, Nelson made no objection when the bounty clause of the state law was repealed.

When he asked about the present state of the fox population, Game Supt. J. R. Smith said that recent surveys have shown an increase in numbers of the predators. But Smith added that game biologists are certain the trend has no relation to the repeal of the bounties. The 30,000 or so foxes bountied each year in the past were an insignificant fraction of the total fox population, he insisted.

Voigt explained the department now has a trapping instruction program underway to help farmers to get rid of their foxes when they are doing damage.

Power Firm
Garage Burns
In Bear Creek

Loss Estimated at
$3,900 in Brisco
Building Blaze

Bear Creek — A fire in the Wisconsin Michigan Power company garage caused more than $3,900 damage about 1 a. m. today. A fireman was hurt. The blaze, apparently starting in the garage wiring, burned out the interior of a third of the building owned by Leo Brisco.

The power company truck and line material stored there were damaged and there was smoke and water damage in the Brisco blacksmith shop and the Ed Prunty plumbing and heating shop in other parts of the building.

Reuben Hanson's hand was injured when something fell on it while he fought the blaze. He is a member of the Bear Creek fire department. The Clintonville department assisted.

The 40 by 100 foot Brisco building is divided into three parts. The garage is a frame addition, 40 by 40 feet in size. Brisco's smithy is of concrete block.

The paint and tires of the truck were destroyed, as was much of the line material stored there. The interior of the garage was burned out. Damage to the truck was estimated at $500 and to the materials at $400.

Brisco said damage to the building amounted to about $3,900. Prunty did not estimate his loss, but said there was some water and smoke damage.

Memorial Hospital
Gets Endowment Fund

Special Committee
Named; $20,000
Already Donated

Two gifts totalling about $20,000 will form the nucleus of an endowment fund for Appleton Memorial hospital. A special committee was organized Friday to administrate the fund.

C. R. Seaborne is chairman of the endowment fund committee. Other members are E. A. Dettman, Walter L. Rugland and Casper E. Youngchild. All are from Appleton.

At the organizational meeting Friday noon at the hospital, committee members discussed ways and means of handling the fund and how to encourage additional gifts. The committee will be advisory to the hospital board of directors, Seaborne said.

Gifts made to the endowment fund will provide the principal from which earnings will be used for various purposes in hospital operation. The original gifts were non-restrictive, Seaborne said, so income from the money can be used for any hospital work as the board of directors determines.

Part of the committee work will be to explain to prospective donors how gifts can be made to the endowment fund while permitting givers to retain the income, as well as tax deduction advantages. The committee also will set up policies on how money will be received and make recommendations to the board of directors on how it shall be used.

New State
Beverage Tax
Head Named

Madison — Ellsworth Jones, Pardeeville, a 24-year veteran of the State Beverage Tax division, is the new chief of the tavern policing and alcohol tax collection arm of the state government.

Jones was named Friday by Harry Harder, commissioner of the state department of taxation, to succeed David Prichard, who was retired under the state pension act.

Prichard retired effective Dec. 31, but he is now using accumulated vacation time, so Jones will take over his desk Monday morning.

The division has about 70 employees, and one of its most publicized responsibilities is enforcement of the state's anti-gambling laws.

Jones ranked second in an examination given by the state bureau of personnel that was limited to present employees of the department.

The position provides tenure. The officer can be removed only for cause, under the state civil service law.

The new chief has been engaged principally in auditing work in the division during his service since 1934. The agency collects liquor, wine and beer taxes in addition to supervising taverns and enforcing tavern control laws.

Grew Up on Campus

Lawrence, YMCA Enjoy Close Relationship for Nearly 80 Years

By Marguerite Schumann

From the most westerly outpost of the Lawrence college campus to the YMCA building is but a block for either pedestrian or flying crowd. That brief distance summarizes the next-door neighborly relationship enjoyed by the two institutions for nearly 80 years.

The Y came to Appleton by way of the campus, as a matter of fact, when a collegiate Y group held many of the functions that student government now holds.

In those early years, the barbaric fact of coeducation in midwestern colleges was to be kept out of the International Yearbook at all costs (so reasoned the easterners on the YMCA committee.) When Lawrence sent its list of officers, the sex-betraying Christian names were edited out in favor of initials. The 1883 yearbook read: "Lawrence University; President—A. Wilson; Cor. Secretary—C. Althouse." Only those on the local scene knew that A. and C. stood for Annis and Carrie, respectively.

Equal Terms
It was Lawrence president George McKendree Steele who put the Lawrence YW and YM on equal terms. His wife, the former Susan Jane Swift, was a nationally known feminist, and Steele enthusiastically shared her liberated views.

The campus Y wore many faces. Part of its personality was social, part spiritual, part governmental. Every Sunday evening there was a meeting devoted to spiritual enrichment. The women's Y looked after the orientation of freshmen through their Big and Little Sister programs. The Y founded such Lawrence traditions as the Best Loved banquet for senior women; the now-defunct campus Walk-Around (a non-dancing sort of mixer); and laid the ground work for the campus union.

The Y evolved the freshman counseling system which was inaugurated in 1927, and set up separate housing for first year students. The Lawrence Y saw to it that outstanding juniors were sent to Europe for a year abroad. The Y encouraged organization of student religious groups on denominational lines. In fact, the Y worked so diligently at setting up separate organizations to fill the campus needs, that in the early '30s, it had worked itself out of a job. So it surrendered the field to the downtown Y, which has continued to attract Lawrence students in a steady stream.

Probably the period of greatest activity for the campus Y was during World War I. Much of the overseas and training campus recreational work now handled by governmental services was done by the National YMCA during that conflict. Lawrence students raised thousands of dollars for Y projects overseas, and three Lawrence professors—Dr.

Wilson S. Naylor, dean of the college; Dr. John S. Austin, and Dean Frederick Vance Evans of the conservatory—went overseas as hut workers.

Contributes Workers

With such lengthy historic relationship between Lawrence and the Y, it is not surprising that Lawrence has contributed dozens of professional workers to the latter cause. Many of those who have come from Lawrence have not been merely "workers" but have developed into leaders in the field. It is no coincidence, for example, that in the three years Lawrence has awarded an Alumni Distinguished Service Medal, one-third of the recipients went from the campus into Y work.

In the first group of distinguished alumni was the late Elizabeth Wilson, of the class of 1890, who several years earlier had received an honorary doctorate from Lawrence, when President Nathan M. Pusey cited her: "Author, scholar, great and honored worker for many years in the YWCA both in this country and in India, first woman member of the Methodist ministry in Wisconsin, always a credit to your Alma Mater, and a rare example of the human spirit in its happy brilliance."

In the second class of distinguished alumni was Elmer Ott, '28, a Y executive in Milwaukee, and director of Camp

Manitowish in northern Wisconsin.

The third group of alumni to be honored last June contained Edward Aeschliman, '14, who began Y work when he ran the second-floor Brookway Y hut during World War I, then went to China to become one of the founders of the Chinese Christian Student movement. In 1935 he became president of the Peking Theological seminary, and in later years served in Africa.

Korean Minister

Every once in a while, the YMCA is able to reverse the flow of leaders, and to send one back to Lawrence. Most dramatic example came several years ago when Appleton Hi-Y and Tri-Y groups, under the leadership of Douglas Ogilvie, brought a young Korean minister to Appleton and to Lawrence to continue his education.

The minister, Ye Yun-Ho, had attracted national attention through several news stories in Time magazine, which summarized his superhuman achievements among groups of refugee children in the slums of Seoul. Ogilvie began a correspondence with the Korean; it took 34 years of unravelling red tape from both ends before Ye finally pulled in to Appleton on a bus one bitter winter afternoon.

Two and a half years later he was handed his B.A. on the stage of Memorial chapel. After several years back in Korea, building anew on his see that only the style is church, hospital and school, lyric; the subjects are slices of life from the Seoul slums.

Family Diary

Cub Scouts Do Their Good Deed

BY JEANNETTE GRIFFITH

It was almost impossible to get anything accomplished last week at Cub Scout meeting because the boys were in a perfect uproar over Christmas. More particularly their roaring concerned what they hoped or expected to be given. Electric trains, bikes and sleds were routine. Peter was receiving a round trip flight to Kansas City from his grandfather. Rex was asking for a sail boat kit. Experience kept our Tommy's expectations within bounds, but even he had several 'must' items on his list.

The whole thing distressed me and I launched into a discourse on the meaning of Christmas and the virtues of giving over receiving. When I finished nine little faces looked gravely into mine. After an awesome silence Peter said bluntly, "Just what are we supposed to give? And who to?"

What finally developed was that I called the office of the social welfare agency and got the name of a family; father out of work, a sick mother and two boys, eight and ten, close to the ages of our scouts. I told John that night, "This is a lesson the boys need to be taught. They need to be shown how truly fortunate they are."

The Cubs and I spent the best part of a week getting Christmas ready for our adopted family. With long hoarded troop funds they bought presents, a fine basket of food and a small Christmas tree. This they trimmed with aluminum stars made of milk bottle tops, cranberry wreaths and rather grimy strings of popcorn. I livened it up with a few of our own glass ornaments. I also used life. It could hurt them badly."

"Too late to think about that now," John said and we presented ourselves at the door with tree and bundles. Inside I glanced around without seeming to and was sick at heart. It was all much worse than I had anticipated. After the basket of food had been exclaimed over and the packages arranged under the tree the two little boys took our Cubs outside to look around and John and I settled down with the parents to work out some kind of a practical plan of assistance.

Grave Comparison
It was dusk when we left. I was struck silent by the realization of the disparity between the abundance at our house and the impoverishment of the home we had visited. I resolved to get along without a good deal more than a new tablecloth this Christmas.

John nudged me out of my abstraction. "Listen!" he said. From the back seat came the loud raucous voices of the Cubs. "Boy, did you ever hear of such lucky kids!"

"Golly, imagine living practically beside a pond. Fishing all summer and skating all winter."

"Gee whiz."

No School

"And just think—" this was our Tommy—"when it snows real hard they can't even get to school. They just stay home all day and play."

"Golly!"

"They don't even have a bathroom—" Rex speaking—"they hardly ever have to have baths."

"And listen guys," Peter shouted, "do you know they don't even wear pajamas. At night they just take off their jeans and crawl into bed!" There was a united prolonged sigh of pure envy.

John's laughter rang out above it all. He put his arm around my shoulder. "What would you think about brightening up the lives of our underprivileged little punks by taking them back to town for fudge sundae?"

CHILDREN OF THE BIBLE by Patrick and Garrison

ESTHER

"And he brought up Hadassah, that is, Esther, his uncle's daughter: for she had neither father nor mother..."

—Esther 2:7

Her Persian name was Esther, meaning "a star." But her parents originally called her Hadassah, the Hebrew word for "myrtle."

When they died, the orphaned girl went to live with her cousin, Mordecai, who was a vizier to the Persian monarch, Ahasuerus.

The Persians chose a better name, for the Bible tells us that "the maid was fair and beautiful."

Because of her foster father's important position, young Esther lived in the palace at Shushan.

This was one of the most elegant and ornate royal mansions in ancient times. When the girl was first taken by Mordecai into the Apadana or audience chamber, she could hardly believe her eyes.

The lofty ceiling was of cedar, brightly painted and set with designs of metal and colored tile. Supporting it were tall columns of gray marble, topped by capitals of beautifully carved kneeling bulls.

Around her the walls were decorated with patterns set with enameled brick. Elaborately embroidered hangings of purple and scarlet could be unrolled to shut out the glare of the hot sunlight during the day.

The pretty girl who first looked upon the splendor of the King's audience hall little realized that one day this would be the setting for her greatest triumph.

For it was here that she pleaded for the lives of her people who were to be persecuted by Haman, prime minister of the king.

In this, her great beauty was matched only by her courage. "I will go in unto the king," she declared boldly, "which is not according to the law: if I perish, I perish."

Her heroism has become a lasting legend.

In Good Taste White Lie May Solve Difficulty

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: For almost every occasion (birthday, anniversary, Christmas, etc.) my mother-in-law has given me a lovely slip. These slips are expensive and I do appreciate them, but they are the wrong size. I was on the verge of mentioning it to her, but my sister-in-law advised me not to as her feelings would be hurt if I found any fault with her gifts. What can I do in this case? If I can't tell her about it and no one else will, am I to keep on accepting these gifts which are useless to me? I've tried taking in the seams but they still don't fit. Will you please tell me what I can do?

Answer: A possible way out of your difficulty would be to tell your mother-in-law during an everyday conversation, "Do you know the diet I have been on really works. I have brought my size down so that I now can wear a 12 instead of the 14 I have worn for years."

Is Dress a Gift?

Dear Mrs. Post: I was the maid of honor in a friend's wedding last week. She paid for my dress. I would like to know if this dress is mine to keep or since she paid for it, do I return it to her? We are about the same size and she could very easily wear it.

Answer: Most correctly you should have paid for the dress yourself, but as the bride paid for it, I think you should ask her if she wants it, or does she wish you to keep it as a present?

Use of Steak Knives

Dear Mrs. Post: I have recently bought a set of steak knives which have solid stainless steel cutting blades and beautiful rosewood handles. I've been wondering about their use. Is it proper to set my table with sterling silver forks and spoons and use these unmatching knives instead of the ones matching my silver? Or are they an extra?

Answer: It should be entirely proper to substitute them for your silver knives whenever serving steak.

Miss Ann Dempsey, Oshkosh, left, and Miss Margaret Evans, Green Bay, assemble a large figure of a reindeer which will highlight decorations at the Lawrence college Christmas formal tonight. Richard Cusic, Riverside, Ill., offers advice from his lofty perch. The annual dance will be held at Lawrence Memorial union.

Foreign Lands, Program Topic Of Altrusa Club

The International Relations committee presented a program on European countries at the Thursday evening Christmas party of the Altrusa club. Mrs. Freda Stutz was chairman.

Members showed slides and pictures and gave short speeches on the countries they had visited: Miss Mary Morton and Miss Iva Welch, France; Miss Bel Hansen, Mexico; Mrs. Stutz, Italy; Miss Nyla Bock, Finland; Miss Genevieve Mortell, Hawaii, and Miss Inez Davis, England. Miss Annabelle Wolf spoke on the University of Washington, Seattle, Wash.

Gifts were collected for the Appleton City home and the children's toy cart at St. Elizabeth hospital.

The guest night dinner will be held at 6:30 p. m. Jan. 22 at the Conway hotel.

Also elected were Mrs. Rudy Richter, associate matron; Florian Heinrich, associate patron; Mrs. Ludwig Schunk, secretary; Mrs. Leon Lecky, treasurer; Mrs. Harold Podzinski, conductress; Mrs. Norman Johnson, associate conductress, and Spyro Gostas, trustee for a 3-year term.

The group was named Wednesday night in elections at the Masonic temple. A contribution was made to the Masonic temple.

sonic-supported Dousman Home for the Aged. Gostas was in charge of the evening's social.

William Kumbier will be installed as high priest of Appleton chapter 47, Royal Arch Masons, at 8 p. m. Jan. 8, at the Masonic temple. He was elected to his post Thursday night at a meeting at the Masonic temple.

Other officers taking chairs with Kumbier are Russell Cooley, king; Spyro Gostas, scribe; George C. Jackson, treasurer; Alvin Krabbe, secretary, and William Hanrahan, trustee for a 3-year term.

Tri-Y Girls Assist Gray Ladies With Handicraft Project

Pandora Senior Tri-Y club members are working on two Christmas service projects. The girls are doing preliminary steps on card baskets for the Gray Ladies who work at the Winnebago State hospital. The partially completed baskets will be completed by the patients under a craft program. Decorated Santa Claus glasses are the other club project. These will be sold to raise funds for the Y's World Service fund.

CDA Study Unit Presents Skit At Yule Party

The skit "Sister Angela's Little Angel" was presented by members of the Catholic Daughters Study club for the St. Mary Christian Mothers' society Thursday night at St. Mary school cafeteria. A potluck party preceded the Yule program and gift exchange.

Miss Louise Grignon was accompanist for the skit. Carols were sung by the assembly, with Mrs. Fred McKeen at the piano.

Stewardesses on Alaska Route Want Ski Pants Garb

Seattle — The problem, the three stewardesses explained, is that area between a shapely knee and a well-turned ankle.

Employing a time-tested phrase, they said: "Baby, it's cold down there."

Noni Myers of Anchorage, Alaska, Marilyn Batey of Seattle and Rosemarie Fliseck of Kent, Wash., were surrounded by an admiring cluster of newsmen as they explained their problem.

Miss Batey, chairman of Council 77 of the Airline Stewardesses and Stewardesses association, said her union was in contract negotiations with Pacific Northern airlines, which flies Alaskan routes.

A lot of things are involved in the talks, she said, but two things the company wants have the girls in a particular frost.

Retired at 32 First, said Miss Myers, the company wants to be able to retire its stewardesses at the age of 32.

But worst of all, piped up Miss Fliseck, the airline won't let its stewardesses wear ski pants on Alaska flights.

"There we are, exposed," Noni said. "They want us to have just this thin veil of nylon between us and the elements at 40 to 60 below zero."

Safety Precaution And Marilyn chimed in:

"Every other airline that flies out of Anchorage requires ski pants, for comfort and as a safety precaution. If we crashed in nylons, our legs would freeze stiff."

"The only reason they'll give us is that ski pants are not in keeping with the decorum of the company uniform," Rosemarie said.

"I asked the airline man what we should do to keep from freezing," Noni said. "He suggested we wear adequate underwear. I said, 'What do you suppose we should do to keep warm between here and there?'"

She used her hands to describe in the air an oval encompassing the aforementioned shapely knee and well-turned ankle.

As a reporter tried in vain

Noni Myers, Left, a Stewardess for Pacific Northern airlines, models a ski outfit she would like to wear on Alaska flights when the temperature dips to 40 and 60 degrees below zero. It's much better, she says, than the skirts the airline wants her to wear. Watching, with approval in their eyes, are two more PNA stewardesses, Rosemarie Fliseck, center, and Marilyn Batey, right.

to reach airline officials for comment, Rosemarie said she was 26. Marilyn is 32. Noni said only that she is "quite a ways from 32 yet."

"Noni: 'You know, the general conception of stewardesses is a bunch of young things tripping down the aisle. Actually, the passengers prefer somebody that's interesting to talk to.'

Rosemarie: 'Somebody mature and capable. Why, some of the best stewardesses in the industry are over 32.'

Marilyn: 'They say you get frumpy and frowzy. Hmph! You haven't lost the romance of life when you get to be 32.'

Chorus: 'They haven't given us one reasonable reason why we shouldn't wear ski pants.'

Dating Can Cause Big Family Fuss

BY ANGELO PATRI

Mother and father were reading in the living room, Carol was at the window watching for her date's arrival when the quiet of the suburban atmosphere was shattered by three loud blasts of an automobile horn.

"Goodness. What's that?" said Mother.

"It's Ronnie, my date. Good night, Mother. Bye now, Dad," and she snatched up her wrap excitedly heading for the door.

"Wait a minute. You mean to tell me that you are racing to answer an automobile horn? Chasing out to go with a boy who is too lazy, too sure of you to get out of his car and come into the house to meet you? You sit down right where you are. Have you no dignity at all?"

Blah, Blah, Blah-h-h went the horn. "Father, he's my date. Mother, make Father behave. What will Ronnie think of me?"

Father Angry

Father had gone to the window to look at the object of his wrath. Suddenly he slapped his thigh. "By Godfrey here's Magonigle. He's going to give him a ticket for horn-blowing. Good for old Magon-igle." and Father chuckled happily.

"No, no. Wait a minute. He's not giving him a ticket. He's making him come into the house, ring the bell, as he should have done in the first place. No, you sit there. Mother will open the door for him."

An embarrassed boy entered the room and stood for an instant looking from one to the other of the family. Father spoke first. "Good evening. I hope that you know the way to our door now. Did anybody ever tell you that it was bad manners to sit in a car and honk a horn to call for a young lady?"

Answers Back

A swift change came over the boy's face. He straightened up and it was wonderful to see how tall he was, how clear the look he fastened upon the irate gentleman before him.

"Yes sir, many a time I have heard the whole story. I have been told that I am responsible for the precious daughter of the house; what a privilege I enjoy; what time to bring her home; what to give her to eat and especially to drink; where to park the car and especially where not to park the car. After all, Mr. Chomley-Jones, sir, I am 18 years old, about to enter the service. I can spare myself the lectures, so I blow my horn. Come on, Carol, and without further ado the two left the house and reared for the car.

Father laughed. "You know, Minnie, I wouldn't mind having that young man for a son-in-law."

Your Problems

High School 'Lowers Boom,' Boys Must Dress With Care

FY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: What do you think of a school that tells boys what to wear and how to wear it?

In our crummy high school the boys have orders to put their shirt tails in and button their shirts to the top regardless of what the weather is like. If we Landers don't have a belt on we get sent home to get one. We can't wear our shirt collars up, they have to be flat. You'd think we were in a reform school.

Last week two kids were sent home and told not to come back till they got haircuts. This creepy joint is worse than Russia. Please say something to help us. It's beginning to be like a jail—Prisoners.

Your sad story gets me right here. It's too darned bad that some kids don't know enough to dress decently and the school has to lower the boom.

Belless pants, shirt tails hanging out, straight up collars and long hair are all trade marks of small-time hoods. And no self-respecting boy would appear in school with his shirt unbuttoned halfway down the front and his chest exposed.

The parents are the ones who should crack down, but if they don't I'm delighted that some schools will.

DEAR ANN: I'm well over 21 and have been going with a man three years younger than I am. The third time he took me out he asked me to marry him. I was flattered but suggested we get to know each other better.

That was 11 months ago and he hasn't mentioned marriage since. Last Wednesday I told him it was time we got engaged. He said he couldn't afford a ring so I gave him $25 for a down payment. He disappeared from sight as if the earth had swallowed him up.

I got worried and phoned his land lady. She said he was in good health and promised to have him call me. He never did, so today I called him at work. He said he put the $25 on a sure thing but the horse lost and he was ashamed to tell me. He suggested I forget about him and date other fellows because he isn't good enough for me.

I love the guy and want to marry him regardless. What shall I do?—Vera Cruz.

Looks as if you picked a loser, too, so hang up your track shoes and quit running after the poor sap. If he were really interested in marriage you wouldn't have to help him with the down payment.

He has already given you the best advice—forget about him and go with other fellows. If you persist in this manhunt and succeed in dragging him to the altar it will serve you right. He'll make a very poor husband.

Jobs in State Up During November

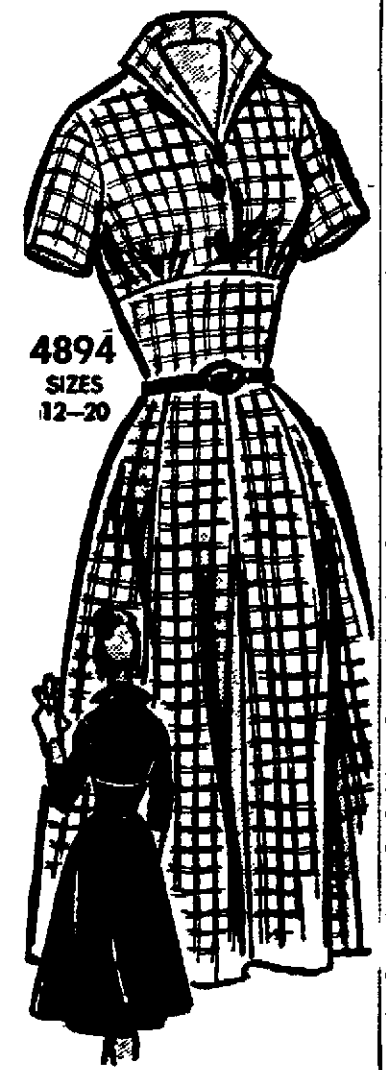

Madison — The Wisconsin Industrial commission reported Friday that employment levels continued to advance during November.

The employment service of the commission said that at mid-November, 430,737 workers were employed in manufacturing firms, an increase of 8,850 from the total in mid-September.

Employment in the durable goods industries accounted for most of the increase. Non-durable goods' employment fell off slightly.

The service said a net loss of approximately 3,800 workers was expected in January due to probable cutbacks in production at that time of non-durable goods producers.

Rachow Resigns After 27 Years on Park Board

Mayor Mitchell To Appoint Two Men Wednesday

Edwin B. Rachow, 902 W. Elsie street, often its chairman during 27 years on the park board, resigned from the board Friday. He cited press of other business.

The appointment triggered announcement by Mayor Mitchell of two proposed appointments to the board, one to fill Rachow's unexpired term, the other to a regular 5-year term.

Arthur W. Jones, 704 S. Pierce avenue, current board secretary whose term is expiring, will be nominated to fill out Rachow's unexpired term. The term runs until Dec. 31, 1961.

William H. Wachtendonk, 37, 908 N. Harriman street, is the mayor's choice to take over Jones' regular term. The council votes on the appointments Wednesday night.

Jones wanted to resign, the mayor said, but "inasmuch as and has served on the board 18 years."

Wachtendonk has been an Appleton resident since 1945. He is married, father of six children and owner of Wachtendonk's Bookkeeping Service, 116 S. Appleton street.

Rachow, retired vice president and sales manager of Appleton Marble and Granite Works, was appointed by Mayor Goodland in December, 1931.

Without Regret
Easing back in his favorite chair Friday, Rachow looked on his 27 years service without regret that he is finally out of it.

"I always tried to be a faithful public servant," he said. "Always tried to check things through. Spent an awful lot of time at it and like other board members, got no pay, nothing, not even any thanks most of the time."

Mrs. Rachow, his bride of 51 years, attested to his summation, remembering the long hours at the telephone or away from home.

"It's a thankless job," she said, "and you get criticized whatever you do. I'm glad he's out of it."

More than half—121.02 acres—were added to the park system's 219.72 acres during Rachow's service.

Golf Course
"Erb park has been improved 100 per cent—no, 1,000 per cent—during that time," he said. "Why, when I joined the board they kept two deer in a pen out there and there was a live duck pond. It was practically wilderness."

Rachow also has vivid memories of helping redesign Reid Municipal Golf course from a 9-hole to an 18-hole layout, working hard to convert Telulah park from a sulky race track, and Linwood park from a dump grounds.

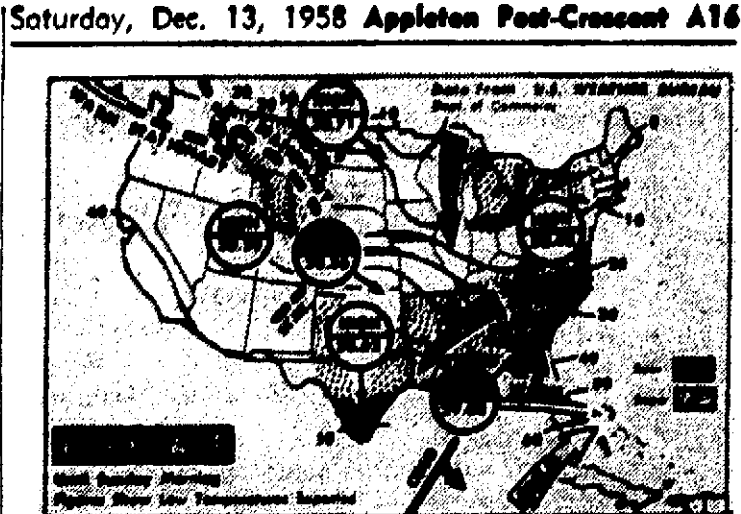

The two largest controversies which swirled about him and fellow board members during his term focused on Jones and Pierce parks.

"Years ago," he said, "there was a move to make a swimming pool area out of Jones park and, of course, the school board put Jefferson school in Pierce park. Oh, we objected to the school in the park, but not too strenuously."

Goodland, Roemer
And, two people crowd large into his memories, starting with Mayor Goodland. "John came to me one day and said, 'I want you on the park board.' Well, I knew the Fifth ward voters' league was pressing him hard to get someone from this end of town on the board, so I took the job."

Former Mayor Robert L. Roemer crops up in the reminiscing often.

"I recall the time some church group was holding a picnic at Pierce park and some fellow tried to move a Menasha — St. Mary's junior varsity squad again attempts to notch its first Fox Valley Catholic conference league win when it entertains Premontre of Green Bay at 6:30 tonight at the Menasha High school gym.

The Zephyr reserves, who had 10 straight league wins and 17 victories in as many starts for the season last year topped Premontre twice in that long skid.

They capped the windup 53-33, paced by Pete Vanderhyden's 19 points after winning the first meeting 47-30. In the 17-point win, St. Mary led by a mere two points at halftime but made the third nine markers of the third frame. Vanderhyden topped the Menasha scorers with 11 points.

The Menashans have an overall 1-3 slate. They bested Stevens Point Pacelli but also lost to the St. John Junior team. In league play, losses were to St. Norbert 49-35 and Springs 56-51 after blowing a 34-18 halftime lead in the latter.

Sundt, Jennings Marino Make Hall of Fame

Milwaukee — The election committee of the Wisconsin Athletic Hall of Fame today certified three new members — the late Guy Sundt, and Con Jennings and Hank Marino.

The trio will become the twenty-sixth, twenty-seventh and twenty-eighth members of the Hall on Nov. 19, 1959, when the organization of sports immortals will hold its annual banquet at the Milwaukee arena.

Joseph J. Krueger, chairman of the Hall of Fame committee, said their elections were unanimous.

Russia Has Setback In Trying to Make Talks Political

Cairo — Soviet delegates suffered a sharp defeat in their efforts to inject politics into the 40-nation Asian-African conference just ended here.

The Russians were on the defensive throughout the economic meeting of delegates from chambers of commerce or their equivalents from Liberia to Japan.

The Russians will be lucky to get invited to the next meeting, which probably will be held late next year.

An 11-nation consultative committee appointed as the conference closed Friday will decide what nations belong in the Asian-African grouping.

One committee member, Indonesia, protested that Russia should have been omitted from this meeting because she is primarily a European power. The Indonesians said they will work to keep Russia out of the next one.

Other committee members, which probably will be cool toward inviting the Soviets, are India, Pakistan, Japan, Libya, Sudan, Ethiopia and perhaps Ghana.

Menasha Doctor Warns That Dads Should Buy Safe Toys

Madison — Take care, Dad, with great force, or which when you help Santa pick out toys for junior this Christmas — make sure they're safe toys.

This is the advice of the president of the State Medical Society of Wisconsin, Dr. W. B. Hildebrand, Menasha.

"Doctors are receiving quite a few reports of hazardous objects being sold as 'toys,'" he said. "We are treating youngsters injured by darts, dart guns and other playthings. Some of these injuries are quite serious."

"The happiness of your holiday can be marred by an accident which causes maiming or great pain. Prevent the accident in the first place by keeping dangerous toys away from your child."

Dr. Hildebrand asked parents to avoid buying toys on the part of several county which shoot off tiny pieces of medical societies and police carbide, darts or pellets departments.

Officers of Winneconne High school's Future Teachers of America club were installed in a candlelight ceremony this week. Tells Farmers Don't Rely on Foreign Labor

Suggests Making Work Attractive To Domestic Force

El Centro, Calif. — Assistant Sec. of Labor Newell Brown last night advised farmers to avoid dependence on the foreign labor supply.

He told 400 members of the Imperial Valley Farmers association.

"It would be foolhardy for growers in America to persist in further dependence on foreign labor if they can possibly get around it."

He suggested that farmers do everything possible to make farm work more attractive to domestic workers.

Foreign Labor

Brown said there is opposition to importation of foreign labor from many quarters in the United States. He added that the new administration in Mexico could bring on changes in the program under which thousands of Mexican workers have been imported.

"I am not urging the elimination of foreign labor," Brown said. "But you should do everything possible to remove the points which are vulnerable to criticism."

Brown said labor leaders George Meany and Walter Reuther have agreed to take an interest in the national advisory committee for farm labor. He described the committee as a liberal group concerned with the standards of living of foreign and domestic labor.

Working Plan

He praised what he termed a do-it-yourself program which began in July when representatives of growers' organizations asked to be allowed to take part in forming the policies of the labor department.

He said that as a result of this a working plan on the question of piecework wages was enacted.

He recommended that growers extend the do-it-yourself program to cover the entire field of labor and take the initiative.

"If you let it be taken by someone else such as the government," he said, "it may be guided by pressures not in your best interest."

Bishop Attacks 'Fast Buck' Horror Films

Says Bad Movies Hurt Moral Health Of Nation's Children

Washington — A Catholic bishop today condemned "fast buck" horror, pseudo-science and crime films aimed especially at youngsters.

Bishop James A. McNulty said such films imperil the moral health and intellectual development of children.

He spoke in a statement urging Catholics to renew their support of the national Legion of Decency, an agency which issues moral evaluations of films.

Bishop McNulty, of Patterson, N. J., is chairman of the Bishops' Committee for Motion Pictures, Radio and Television. The Legion of Decency is the executive arm of the policy-making committee.

Ask Pledge

The statement, issued by the National Catholic Welfare conference, said a pledge to support the legion will be read tomorrow at all masses in American Catholic churches. Such a pledge has been renewed annually since 1938, the NCWC said.

Bishop McNulty said the pledge has been a forceful instrument in crystallizing public opinion on motion picture morality. He added:

"The pledge . . . actually does nothing more than to recall the specific obligation that Catholics, and indeed all men, have with regard to motion pictures even if there were no Legion of Decency. 'This is the obligation not to attend motion pictures which are harmful to themselves or to their neighbors.'"

George Long were among the first to accept the aid. A junior high at La Crosse was the last closed.

Alkaline Injections Bring Relief to Asthma Patients

BY ROBERT GOLDENSTEIN

Minneapolis — An allergist has reported that the simple procedure of reducing blood acidity with alkaline injections brought rapid and dramatic relief to asthmatic patients on the threshold of death.

Blumenthal said in a report at the annual clinical conference of the American Medical association:

"There is nothing more disturbing than to find that adrenalin, the drug which is still by far the best in the treatment of acute allergic states, is losing its effectiveness."

Studies of this problem showed that epinephrine works fastest when the blood is more alkaline than acid.

Working on this line, Blumenthal and his associates injected a sodium lactate solution into the bloodstreams of 45 patients. No other medication was added. All quickly recovered from their attacks.

Blumenthal said the results apparently were due to the effectiveness of the patients' own adrenin.

He said such injections should not be given to persons in whom sodium retention would be dangerous.

Petticoat Singer Tells Style Secret

AP Newsfeature
"You can talk all you want about those slinky styles," says Alice Lon, the Texas thrush, "but I'm the petticoat type."
Pert, pretty and strictly feminine, Alice began her singing career in Kilgore, Tex., at the age of 6, and has been at it ever since.
"My mother used to make all my clothes, especially petticoats," says Alice. "She said a girl ought to have plenty of frills and ruffles, and that's what I think, too. That's why I'd never dream of appearing on stage or television without one of my favorite petticoats — they do something for me. I have dozens, in all colors."
Alice's 48-yard petticoat has won nationwide fame since she has been appearing as featured singer with Lawrence Welk's orchestra.

Alice's directions proved a little baffling, so the problem was turned over to local sewing center experts, who went into a huddle and came up with the following instructions:
Materials
Materials needed: nine yards nylon net, 72 inches wide; 48 yards satin ribbon, one inch wide; two yards satin ribbon two inches wide, one hook and eye.
This petticoat is made in three sections: a circular section at the waist, with two rows of ruffles edged in satin ribbon. For the first section, cut off one yard of net. Fold in half crosswise so you have a piece 36 by 36 inches. Find center of net square in order to draw two concentric circles — one of the waist and one for the lower edge of the first section.
To draw circle for waist, attach pencil to string and hold end of string to center of net square with a thumb-tack. If your waistline is 25 inches, a 4-inch length of string will be about right. Each additional half-inch of string will enlarge the circle by approximately three inches. Draw circle for waistline.
Length
Now determine correct length for petticoat by measuring from your waistline to your hemline. To determine depth of first section, subtract 18 inches, to allow for depth of two nine-inch ruffles. Adjust string to length of difference between these measurements, working from the outside edge of the circle you have drawn for your waistline.
For example, if the finished length of the petticoat is to be 28 inches, and you subtract 18 inches, you get 10 inches. Your top section will be 10 inches deep. With string still secured to center of net square, lengthen string by 10 inches and draw second circle. Cut out hole for waistline and cut around second circle. You will now have a doughnut-shaped piece of net.
Cut waistline slit 6 inches long for placket. Bind waist and placket with 2 inch satin ribbon. Put hook and eye at waistline closing.
Cut remaining 8 yards of net lengthwise into eight strips nine inches wide. Each strip will be 8 yards long.
For the first ruffle, sew ends of two strips together, to form a piece of net 16 yards long and 9 inches wide. Gather and stitch to lower edge of top section.
For the second ruffle, sew remaining six strips together to form a piece 48 yards long and 9 inches wide. Gather and stitch to lower edge of first ruffle.
Using the multi-slotted binder attachment for your sewing machine, edge lower edge of petticoat with satin ribbon. Finished petticoat is 48 yards at the hem.

OSC Plans 'Twilight' Musicales

A medley of Christmas carols by the college brass ensemble, directed by Roger Dennis, music department chairman, will open the program.
Larry Klausch will be accompanied by the college string quartet in the "Adagio" from Bach's Concerto in F Minor. Quartet members are Barbara Bacich and Mabel Mancini, violins; Joan Eng, viola; and Kay Jouno, cello. Susan Reiland will play an orchestral transcription for second piano.
Piano solos next on the program will be played by Marilyn Schroeder, Steve Wittmack, a pupil in the Training school, and Jerry Brinker, guest soloist from Appleton. Their presentations will include selections by MacDowell, Bloch, Sibelius, Chopin and Rachmaninoff.
Accompanied by the college string quartet, David Johnson will play Mozart's "Concerto Rondo" and a group of three Christmas numbers will be sung by the college vocal ensemble, under the direction of Dr. Stanley Lenton. Susan Reiland, Appleton, will play several piano selections, including compositions by Ravel, Poulenc and Chopin.
The piano soloists who will appear are students of Miss Gladys Yves Brainard, instructor of piano at Oshkosh State college, and the string quartet is directed by David Zeff of the music department faculty. The musicale is open to the public without charge.

Festive Holiday Candy Boxes

Package Homemade Candies In Original Gift Wrappings

Neenah — Add originality to your holiday gift of homemade candy by decorating the wrappings with tiny candies. Bells, trees, stars or greetings can be outlined on the gift paper.
Winnebago county homemakers demonstrated a variety of ways to decorate the gifts in a display at their Christmas fair. One woman covered her box of goodies with bright red wrappings. Tiny seed pearls were glued to the paper in the shape of a bell with a silver bow for a frilly touch. Another homemaker copied the idea, using red candies to form a bell on white gift paper.
Small chocolate candies were shaped into a triangular shaped tree on shiny gold foil paper on another package in the display. For small fry on the Christmas list, a homemaker decorated pale blue wrappings with a Raggedy Ann face. Twisted black licorice was used for the braid with gum drops for the features. Santa Claus figurines or striped candy canes also form attractive decorations.
A box of candy for a gentleman might be wrapped in silver or gold foil paper and decorated with candy cigarettes. Coffee cans can be painted and given a festive air with holiday stickers or painted designs for a different type candy container.
For caroling parties or other holiday festivities for the younger set, the homemakers suggested Santa Claus Lollipops. The giant-size suckers are made with two cups sugar, two-thirds cup corn syrup, coloring, one cup water, one-half teaspoon flavoring and 12 wooden skewers.
Cook the sugar, water and syrup to 310 degrees. Cool slightly, flavor and color. Put into a pan of hot water while dipping. Dip from the tip of a tablespoon onto a well buttered slab or baking sheet. Insert skewers immediately. Decorate as desired while hot, using shredded coconut, blanched almonds, candied cherries, raisins, jelly beans, peppermint candy, nuts or candied citron.
A creamy confection to tuck into a gift box is pineapple cream squares. Ingredients are three cups sugar, one cup crushed pineapple, two tablespoons white syrup. Cook together until soft ball forms when tried in cold water.

Remove from the stove and add two teaspoons butter, 24 marshmallows, three cups broken pecans and one teaspoon vanilla. Beat together until creamy and very stiff. Put into a buttered pan and cut in squares, when firm.
Fruit Splurge
"Fruity and festive, a holiday splurge" is the way Urbanite Homemaker club describes fruited chocolate drops. The recipe requires one-half cup pitted prunes, three-fourths cup figs, two-thirds cup pitted dates, one-half cup seedless raisins, three-fourths cup California walnut meats and one six or seven ounce package of melted semi-sweet chocolate.
Grind the fruits and nut meats, using coarsest blade of the food chopper. Mix well. Form in small balls and dip into the chocolate. Place on waxed paper and cool. The recipe makes about one and one-half dozen fruit balls.
Chocolate mints for after-dinner munching are made with one tablespoon cream or condensed milk, two and one-half cups powdered sugar, four tablespoons cocoa, eight drops oil of peppermint or wintergreen and one unbeaten egg white.
Make into small patties and chill. Dip in melted sweet chocolate and place a nut on each patty. To make pink wintergreen mints, omit the cocoa and add two drops of red food coloring. White peppermints can be made in the same way.
The holiday is not quite complete without the traditional popcorn balls. Syrup for the balls is made by cooking in a large kettle, one cup corn syrup, one-half cup sugar, one teaspoon cream of tartar, one tablespoon vinegar, one-fourth teaspoon soda and food coloring, if desired. Boil the ingredients together to crack stage. Remove from the fire, add baking soda and beat. Pour over about four quarts of popcorn.
Hints for candymakers include buttering the tins used in refrigerators for ice cubes and pouring fudge mixture in to them. The candy hardens very quickly and the pieces will be uniform.

2 Destitute Families Found Cold, Hungry In Shanty Near River

Madison — Public and private welfare agencies Thursday came to the aid of eight members of two families found hungry, cold and destitute in a shanty on the Wisconsin river five miles east of Mazomanie.

School absence of a youngster in the group led to discovery of the condition.

Sheriff's officers said they found the food supply amounted to three potatoes and two cans of milk. Driftwood burning in an old stove failed to heat the 2-room shack and occupants were wearing all the clothes they owned.

The group included Mrs. Herbert Privett, 45, and her two sons, Delbert, 14, and Stanley, 13; Mrs. Privett's daughter, Mrs. Vernie Liggett, 24, and Mrs. Liggett's four children, ranging in age from six months to six years.

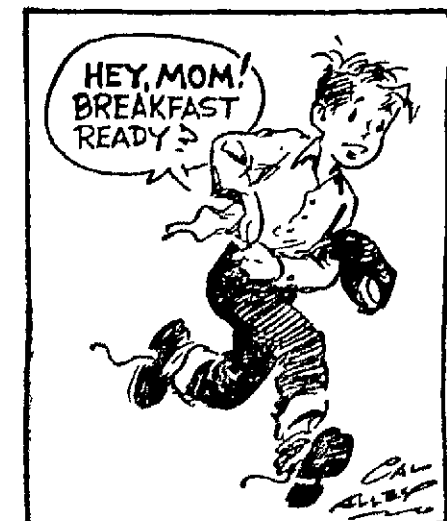

Officers said Mrs. Privett's husband was in a hospital and that whereabouts of Mrs. Liggett's husband was unknown. Officials said Mrs. Liggett brought her family from Centralia, Ill., in November to visit the grandmother.

Sea Platform Tested Off California in Missile Launching

Point Mugu, Calif. —The silhouette of a ship that could have been a submarine slipped silently through the morning mist. A mile away off the starboard bow lay the shore, wreathed in white breakers.

Midway along the foredeck of the ship, a circular hatch some 15 feet across swung open and a shiny metal bird with folded wings crawled up into the light along a slanted track.

It came to rest in a cradle of steel girders, straightened its stubby wings and swivelled into launching position.

The great bird, as long as a 5-story building is tall, began to scream louder and louder as submariners remote in the bowels of the mother ship opened the throttle of the missile's powerful turbo-jet engine.

A rocket-like blast broke the straining bird loose from its moorings and hurtled it toward an inland target with 100,000 pounds of thrust.

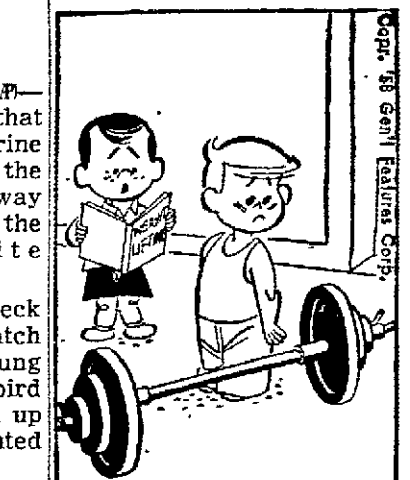

This happened Wednesday off the California coast in a test of America's newest sea-launching platform.

High Finance

Test your money sense on this little problem in "high finance." Jimmy had $3.25 in quarters and dimes. He bought a 5-cent pencil, paying for it with a quarter and receiving two dimes in change. Then he had four more dimes than quarters. How many of each coin had he at first?

Answer: He originally had ten dimes and nine quarters.

The action followed a public meeting at which only two persons appeared in opposition to the proposal.

Principal opposition has to do with the fact that the plan would require the university to give up a portion of its land to a private developer.

R-Oakfield, who termed the plan "socialistic in nature."

Amazing versatility! matchless convenience!

Rams are 17-Point Favorite Over Bays

Expect Crowd of 60,000

BY ART DALEY

Los Angeles — The Packers play the last 60 minutes of what probably will be their worst season in history in the Coliseum Sunday afternoon. That's an awful thing to say about our Bays but they've been far from successful during this season of 1958. A loss to the Rams would set the Green Bay mark at 1-10-1, which would be worse than the 2-10 for 1949.

There was no immediate comment from Foster, in his twenty-fifth year as Badger cage coach, or from university officials.

Rockets Capture 2nd Win in 3 M-E Contests

BY GEORGE MANCOSKY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer
Neenah — Neenah took the lead with the first basket of the game and after being tied 2-2 moved ahead for keeps in defeating Kaukauna 49-39 here Friday night.

The victory gives the Rockets a 2-1 Mid-Eastern conference record. Kaukauna is winless in three outings.

Better shooting in the second half sent the Rockets on their way to the triumph. Both teams had difficulty putting the ball through the confines of the hoop in the first half and while Neenah perked up in the final two frames Kaukauna continued to have trouble.

Unofficial statistics show that Neenah made 11 of 41 shots in the first half but improved to 11 for 24 in the second, including six for 11 in the fourth. The hosts wound up with 22 for 65 or 34 per cent accuracy.

1 Goal in 21 Tries
Kaukauna collected only five baskets in 40 attempts in the first two periods, including an almost unbelievable one for 21 in the second frame, a six-point period. The Kaws made seven for 42 in the last half to close with 12 for 82, which is about 15 per cent.

Both teams employed zone defenses. They worked the ball inside little with the result that many long shots were taken. There was very little offensive rebounding on either side, especially in the first three frames.

23-17 At Halftime
Kaukauna was almost as cold from the free throw line, making 15 for 28. The Ghosts only committed eight fouls and Neenah made five of its nine free throw tries. Kaukauna just had two fouls in the first half and the hosts didn't get the bonus until 3:04 remained in the game.

Coach Ole Jorgensen's athletes led 12-5 at one mark in the first quarter but Kaukauna

Two Rivers — Unbeaten Kimberly High school retained a first place tie in the Mid-Eastern conference Friday night with a decisive 81-55 basketball victory over Two Rivers.

Host Two Rivers led throughout the first half with forward Don Koprowski pushing in five field goals in the first quarter and totaling 15 points for the first half. Two Rivers led at the intermission, 34-32.

The visiting Papermakers came back with a strong attack in the third period and bulged to a 28-9 quarter margin that gave them a safe lead. Darrell Jansen led off the third quarter with a rebound tip-in that evened the score at 34-34. Jansen again scored to put Kimberly out in front for good, 36-34. This was the first point, however, at which Kimberly had led in the game.

Lamers Hits
With 41 minutes remaining in the third period, and Kimberly ahead, 44-35, Jack Lamers began to hit and increased the victors' margin to 51-36 in less than two minutes. During the game-winning third quarter Lamers scored nine points, Jansen eight and Dick Minten six.

Two Rivers lost control of the boards in the final two periods. The evening's top scorer was Lamers with 21 while Jansen turned in a 19-point performance.

In the "B" game, Kimberly downed Two Rivers, 46-30.

Wins Skirmish
Mullins Continues on His Way to Rome

Milwaukee —(U)— Marquette Athletic Director Laurence "Moon" Mullins continued on the way to Rome today, the winner of a skirmish with the university "M" club which sought his ouster.

The university administration rejected the proposals of the club, an organization of former Warrior letter winners. The club had made its requests in a letter sent to the nine members of the university athletic board.

Much to be Desired
The Rev. John G. Holbrook, chairman of the athletic board, said the club's suggestions met with a "flat refusal." Father Holbrook added that the letter "contained general statements which we at the university frankly could not accept and I told the club so."

The letter said the athletic program under Mullins, who came here 2 1/2 years ago, "left much to be desired." That was a reference to the Warriors poor football showing under Johnny Druze who resigned because of a 3-year record of 2 victories, 26 defeats and a tie.

Ed Mullen, president of the club, said the letter was not intended as a recitation of reasons for dropping Mullins. "We asked that consideration be given to relieving him," Mullen said and added that the club planned to supply justification for its request later. It probably won't get the chance.

Mullins could not be reached for comment. He was en route to Rome for ordination of a son and the wedding of a daughter.

Trucker Rally Falls Short, Indians Win

Shawano Retains Share of Lead On 59-54 Verdict

Clintonville — The Clintonville high school basketball team came close to shaking Shawano loose from a 17-point lead and handing the Indians their first Mid-Eastern conference loss of the season Friday night, but the bid fell short, 59-54.

Trailing 48-31, going into the final period, the Trucker unveiled a press which shook up the defending champions. Clintonville roared to within three points, 57-54, with 35 seconds to play and had another basket wiped out by a "traveling" call at that juncture.

The Indians hung on and added two insurance points. The win, third straight of the young conference season, enabled Shawano to retain a share of the lead (with Kimberly).

Fritsch Hits 20
Clintonville's Bill Fritsch, who amassed 20 points for the game, led the last-quarter attack with 14 points. Shawano scored only one basket in the final stanza, but added nine free throws.

Phil Timm, who connected for six of his eight field goals in the first half, wound up with 20 points to tie Fritsch for high honors.

In a cold first quarter, the Trucker managed only five points, while the Indians were getting a dozen. Better rebounding was one of the chief ingredients of a 23-15 halftime lead for Shawano.

In the junior varsity game, Clintonville scored its fifth straight win, 41-34. Doug Huebner led the way with 16 points.

Romance in DeMille Historical Movie Mortifies Family

New Orleans, La. —(P)—Attorneys for movie producer Cecil B. DeMille studied a petition Friday which ordered him into court Jan. 2 to pinpoint responsibility for production of the film "The Buccaneer."

The petition was filed in state court in behalf of Henri Balthaz Claiborne of Center Cross, Va., a great-grandson of Louisiana Gov. William Charles Claiborne.

The Claiborne descendant claims the movie causes the family "great mortification" by picturing a romance between Jean Lafitte, the pirate, and a daughter of the governor who had died many years prior to the time of the fictional romance—about the time of the Battle of New Orleans in 1815.

About 30 Shows Coming Up Center On Christmas Theme

BY CHARLES MERCER

New York—(P)—A tally of network television programs reveals at least 30 with Christmas themes in the coming fortnight—and many others will stress the spirit of the season.

Not everything worth viewing in the next seven days will be concerned with Christmas. Here are some of the network programs coming up.

Sunday is a day of distinguished programming.

In another "Conquest" program (CBS-TV) Eric Sevareid narrates two scientific developments: a chemical that wars on cancer cells, and efforts to predict earthquakes.

"Hallmark Hall of Fame" (NBC-TV) presents "The Christmas Tree" by Helen Deutsch, an hour of varied entertainment with such performers as Cyril Ritchard, Carol Channing, Tom Poston, Ralph Bellamy, Jessica Tandy.

Monday night (ABC-TV) "Voice of Firestone" offers a "Salute to Tchaikovsky" with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, Pianist Eugene list, violinist Oscar Shumsky and operatic star Mildred Miller.

Red Wing Shoes and Boots for men and boys make Christmas gifts that are highly appreciated for their usefulness and comfort. This was the word this week from Kimball Shoe service, 616 W. College avenue, which carries the most complete selection of these popular shoes in this area, Robert (Bob) Kimball, the owner, stated Friday. Part of the firm's stock is shown above in a view of the store's interior. Phone number of the firm is RE-4520.

Red Wing work shoes can be worn for every type of job, and cannot be surpassed for comfort and durability due to the design and construction of the shoes themselves, the firm points out. The Red Wing line also includes a wide variety of fine quality boots for outdoors sports wear, both for men and boys. Kimball Shoe service handles Red Wing boots and shoes exclusively and specializes in offering a personal fitting service to assure the wearer complete satisfaction. Kimball's shoe repair department is modern and completely equipped to give readers prompt service on all shoe repair work. Kimball states that customer satisfaction is at all times — an absolute "must." The shop is open from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, and Fridays to 9 p.m.

Suess TV & Radio has recently added a new Hi-Fi and Stereophonic Demonstration room at the store. Joe Suess, owner of the firm, said Friday that "the purpose of the new room is to better enable anyone interested in Hi-Fi and Stereo to enjoy the amazing quality of the new Zenith line in sumptuous surroundings." Tastefully decorated and acoustically perfect, the room is a showcase for the beautiful cabinetry and the wonderful sound of Zenith quality record-playing machines. Mr. Suess has extended his invitation to the public to "stop in while downtown to see and hear all the beauty of Stereophonic sound." He pointed out that the firm "has one of the largest selections of Zenith television, radios, Hi-Fi & stereo players in the area on display, all available now, for Christmas Giving." SUESS TV & RADIO, located at 306 E. College Ave., Appleton, also has one of the most modern and complete service departments in the area.

Richmond street, these days in answer to the season's demand for Gunderson's delicious, top-quality holiday treats. Fresh and wholesome ingredients are always used in Gunderson's baked goods, and no substitutes that might impair their distinctive flavor are ever used. Phone number of the popular Appleton bakery is RE 4-7118.

To mention a few of the traditional Christmas goodies now on hand at Gunderson's, readers will find; pfeffer-nusse, a German - derived Christmas treat; fruit cakes, rich and mellow with fruit and nuts in sizes to accommodate everyone's need; mince and pumpkin pies for tasty holiday desserts; and a wide-sweeping array of colorful Christmas cookies, including those ever-popular animal cookies, topped with colored sugars and icing.

Christmas party cookies make good gifts for friends and are perfect for holiday entertaining. Christmas stollens, shaped and decorated like Christmas trees, are also popular with Gunderson customers this year, the store reported Friday.

For Many Years Elm Tree bakery products have received customer preference in the Fox Cities. FIRST in consumer demand, Elm Tree has traditionally baked their "27 Variety Breads" with pride and skill. Seventy-seven years have been spent in keeping the dream about grandmother's bread alive and today Elm Tree believes they are producing breads with that mouth-watering goodness and aroma that floated out of Mother's kitchen on Saturday nights. Many Yuletide specialties are now featured by the firm.

Elm Tree Baking company follows the tradition of the Old Fashioned Yuletide. Since ancient history the baking and giving of festive foods has been part of the true spirit of Christmas, the firm reminds. Even today, many of the Old World decorate their Christmas trees with food, particularly those tasty delicious types from friendly ovens. The bakers at Elm Tree provide an opportunity to remember friends and relatives in this "good taste tradition". Assorted butter cookies boxed in an especially designed acetate packages say a sparkling, Merry Christmas. To the mailman and to many others who give special service throughout the year. Pfeiffermuesse gaily packaged, will tell that "shut-in" a thoughtful message, Elm Tree suggests. Then the traditional fruit cake: Whether you select the Elm Tree family style or the deluxe made from a guarded recipe which assures 80 per cent fruit and nuts, you will be giving top quality in taste and tradition. With such a varied price range, sizes, and gift packaging, you can remember everyone from the next door neighbor to that person who "has everything." The most discriminating will appreciate a de luxe 5-pound Elm Tree Fruit Cake in an artfully beaded holiday container.

For the Children Of course Elm Tree Bakers did not forget the children. It's so easy to make them happy with Elm Tree gaily iced Christmas animal cookies or Festive ice box cookies cut in different designs. Remember, that all important Christmas breakfast, more and more a family gathering, can be highlighted with an Elm Tree Christmas stollen or coffee cake artfully shaped as a Christmas tree. Holiday bread is excellent for that "take along" to the Christmas family dinner, whether it be at Grandma's house, Mother's house, or daughter's house. One of the items more than ever a true Christmas delight is the marzipan. This miniature reproduction of fruit and vegetable made of almond paste are delicious to eat and excellent for our ever busy hostess to use for ornaments.

On her Christmas centerpiece tree or as an extra touch to the gayly decorated cookies artistically arranged on trays. As always Elm Tree tries to anticipate what a customer will want and can use most conveniently. Christmas time is just one of the seasonal holidays when Elm Tree gives this extra thinking that marks the baking industry still as the art of kings.

'How to Buy Carpet' Is Subject of 'Bride & Home' Winter Edition Article

Considerations for the new bride to take into account when she purchases the carpeting for her first home are told in detail in the winter, 1958 edition of Bride & Home magazine, according to the Carpet Shop, 506 W. College avenue, who present highlights from the article as a public service this week. Carpet is the largest, single area of color in your home, warns the article. Carpeting can dictate the color scheme or remain neutral. Handsome colors are available in each and every fiber, but if the color of your dreams can't be found, brides are advised to inquire about carpeting which can be custom-dyed to match anything.

The average reader will be delightedly surprised, the article concluded, to learn that for a very small sum per month you can own the carpet, or carpets, of your dreams — and even make your final selection right in your own home from store samples. Many Young People Have Good Idea of Where They are Going

BY GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

New York — It is interesting to talk to young and old, to the different generations and to try to discover what is actually going on in the minds of all kinds of folks. Many of the older generation are discouraged, it would seem, because money is not worth what it used to be and the young people are disrespectful. But one meets quite a number of youngsters who do know where they are going and are very much interested in the course of events and who are not so fearful of the inflation because they expect a closer association of the individual and the government and that somehow the government will accomplish a social institution what the individual cannot accomplish by himself. What it really amounts to is that the world does not come to an end because a generation or two becomes very discouraged by the course of events. Parents are achingly anxious that there should be no war, but sons get ready for what might come. Boys and girls at college are thinking in broad terms, of how they might improve government and how they might even rebuild society while their parents wonder how to export dollars from here to Venezuela or Switzerland or how to organize a Liechtenstein corporation which will save them from paying income taxes.

Top Students
All the time, we hear about events and the juvenile delinquents, but how often do we hear about the juvenile top grade students and the whose marks are in the 90's. Older folks sometimes say that the youngsters have a "guilt complex." But it is not a guilt complex at all. It is a sense of social responsibility that has taken hold early in life. It is the kind of responsibility which in the 19th century sent young men and women into settlement houses and later into missions in Asia and Africa and South America. This same sense of social responsibility is affecting large numbers of young people to relate themselves to their age.

In the 1930's, communism appealed to some. The churches had a wonderful opportunity to attract youth and to offer them a hope of resurrection but they lost their way in the early 50's by trying to find compromises which were discouraging. Youngsters who turned to churches in the 40's turned away in the 50's because they could not find there the sense of resurrection which is what one seeks in religion. And so now, the youngsters turn not only to science but to knowledge of every kind and it is not unusual to find a youngster today with a head full of book-learning, and who is trying to think out his problems on a broad basis with some philosophic background.

The older generation is not a little frightened. It has witnessed the roughness of income tax inspections; it has worried itself sick about hiding dollars under the bed or in a locked box in a bank; it has even moved money to Switzerland. It has been inordinately money-conscious. The younger generation wants all the things that money will buy but it desires not to sacrifice integrity to get the money. Older folks sometimes say that the youngsters have a "guilt complex." But it is not a guilt complex at all. It is a sense of social responsibility that has taken hold early in life. It is the kind of responsibility which in the 19th century sent young men and women into settlement houses and later into missions in Asia and Africa and South America. This same sense of social responsibility is affecting large numbers of young people to relate themselves to their age.
